Memo to Reagan Linked Hostages' Release to Arms

By David Hoffman

WASHINGTON — The White day showing that at the time President Ronald Reagan approved arms sales to Iran, he was advised by his national security adviser that the shipments "may well be our only way to achieve the release of the Americans held in Beirut."

The administration has asserted that the weapons shipments were not approved as part of a swap for hostages, but to improve U.S. relations with Iranian moderates.

The documents made public Fri-day were Mr. Reagan's intelligence finding last Jan. 17 that authorized the sales and the withholding from Congress of information about them, and a three-page supporting

Mr. Reagan did not read the memorandum but was briefed on it by his national security adviser, Vice Admiral John M. Poindexter, according to a senior White House official. Mr. Poindexter resigned his post after the disclosure of the proceeds to the rebels fighting the

The memorandum, which previously had been highly classified, indicated that both Israel, which acted as an intermediary for the weapons transfers, and Iran "have agreed that the hostages will be immediately released on commencement of this action."

"If all the hostages are not re-leased after the shipment of the first 1,000 weapons, further trans-fers would cease," the memorandum stated. All the hostages were not released, but there were at least four arms deliveries after the Jan. 17 finding was nigred.

for Hawk antiaircraft mussiles were shipped to Iran, counting those sent from Israel in 1985 before the president signed the Jan. 17 finding. The arms shipments led to the release of two of the four Americans held in Lebanon.

The senior White House official said the memorandum supports Mr. Reagan's previous statement that the Iran initiative was primarily directed at opening a relationnip with moderate elements in Tehran. NICOSIA - Iran launched a new offensive in the Gulf war Friday, and both sides reported heavy fighting near the southern Iraqi city of Basra.

By nightfall, the state news agencies in Tehran and in Baghdad, monitored in Cyprus, were claiming victory for their combatants and each asserted that "thousands" of the enemy had been slain.

igton Post Service HACKENSACK, New Jersey --- Mary Beth Whitehead signed an agreement to have a baby for a couple in exchange for $10,000. But in the delivery room, moments after her daughter was born, she changed her mind.

"At the end, something took over," the New Jersey housewife testified Thursday. "I guess it was just being a mother. It overpowered me. I just cried and cried. I didn't want the $10,000. I just wanted my child."

Her voice cracking, ner eyes streaming tears, Mrs. Whitehead, 29, was on the witness stand in a case that for the first time in a U.S. court tests the validity of a surrogate mother contract.

Upward of 600 children have been born in the last decade through agreements in which a woman is paid to be artificially inseminated with the sperm of a man whose wife is infertile. The woman then gives up the child to the

Although three other cases of mothers who hanged their minds have been cited by clinics that sponsor such arrangements, all have been settled out of court, with the father giving up the baby.

However, in the case of "Baby M," as the 9month-old girl born to Mrs. Whitehead is known, the father, William Stern, a biochemist from the suburban town of Tenafly, and his wife, Elizabeth, a pediatrician, seized the child in July after a court awarded them temporary clinic, and to deny visitation rights to Mrs.

"Everybody is talking about mothers' rights and nobody seems to be concerned about fathers' rights," Mr. Stern said Thursday outside the courtroom. "Fathers have dreams, too." At the trial, which began Monday, the Sterns wept on the witness stand. Richard Whitehead, Mary Beth's husband, testified that he too had changed his mind in the delivery room, as he watched his wife "crying hysterically."

The case has attracted national attention. About 40 book and movie offers have been made to both couples. Attorneys say they expect the case to reach the New Jersey Supreme Court and set a precedent.

Legislation to govern the practice, which critics oppose as a form of "baby selling," has been debated in more than a dozen states and the District of Columbia, but no laws have been passed.

Mrs. Whitehead, a high-school dropout who was married at 16 and has two older children, answered a newspaper advertisement placed by the infertility center in 1984.

In almost four hours of testimony Thursday, she said that she had felt the pain of her sister, Beverly, who could not have children. "I thought that God would" aid Beverly, she said, if she helped another couple.

Mrs. Stern, 41, testified that she had delayed pregnancy until her medical residency was finished in 1981, but then discovered she had a mild form of multiple sclerosis. She said she feared she might become paralyzed if she were to become pregnant.

Mrs. Whitehead's attorney, Harold Cassidy, called this "an irrational fear." He said he would call on medical experts to refute the contention that Mrs. Stern could not bear children. The contract asserts that she is "infertile" and could not be enforced if she is fertile, Mr. Cassidy maintained. Mr. Stern, 40, testified that he was the only child of refugees from Nazi Germany, both deceased. He said he wanted a child biological-See MOTHER, Page 6

Argentine Rights Groups File Charges
BUENOS AIRES (WP) — Argentine human rights groups have filed more than 1,000 criminal charges against about 650 people, including at least 98 retired generals and admirals, in an effort to initiate cases on rights violations before a Feb. 22 deadline set by President Raul Alfonsin and Congress.

Eleven rights groups said they had asked the armed forces' highest tribunal Thursday to take immediate action on the cases. Should it fail to do so, they said, the cases would pass to civil jurisdiction. Those accused included five active-duty generals and one serving admiral.

The law approved last month at the request of Mr. Alfonsin stipulates that security force personnel and others not called by a court to testify before Feb. 22 cannot be indicted after that date for crimes committed in the 1970s during the so-called "dirty war" against leftist guerrilla groups.

Despite government efforts to discourage them, students subsequently took to the streets in at least a dozen other cities, including Shanghai and Beijing.

that students at Beijing University put up at the end of December, Mr. Wan said democracy was something granted by the Communist Party to the people.

Mr. Fang challenged that, the wall poster

Air Force is asking Congress for permission to conduct three tests of its jet-launched anti-satellite weapon against targets in space begin-ning in October, Pentagon officials

> But the air force, which says it has taken its test program as far as possible without new tests on real targets, will seek to resume the tests and to spend more than $1.1 billion in 1988 and 1989 on research and production of the weapon.

Last year Congress refused to allow most work relating to pro-duction of the weapon, and cut the funds available for research while blocking tests against space objects in fiscal 1987, which ends Sept. 30. In 1986, with a similar moratorium in place, the air force conducted two space tests by pointing the missile at the light of a star instead of at actual targets. In 1985, the air force conducted the only test to date against an actual target, de-

Bennett Backed For House Post

WASHINGTON - Democratic leaders in the House of Representatives recommended Thursday the election of Representative Charles E. Bonnett of Florids as chairman of the House Armed Services Com-

Mr. Bennett, 76, is the most senior Democrat on the committee seeking the chairmanship, and the House Democratic Steering and Policy Committee's recommendation of him was considered almost inevitable because such endorsements are usually made on the basis of seniority.

Congressional officials said the main battle for the job is likely to he between Representative Marvin Leath of Texas, and the ousted chairman, Representative Les Aspin of Wisconsin. Most Hoose Democrats consider Mr. Leath to be the front-runner in the race. House Democrats voted Wednesday to remove Mr. Aspin, who said he would remain in the race and seck re-election.

Members of Congress and others who favor the test moratorium have argued that as long as neither the United States nor the Soviet Union tests anti-satellite technologies, the arms race can be kept out of outer space. The Pentagon has said the Soviet Union already has an operational anti-satellite weapon and is conducting research into more advanced technologies for the same purpose.

Air force officials say that if the moratorium on tests continues, it might be pointless to continue the

While the air force hopes to resume the tests, it has already cut back sharply on the number of missiles it plans to buy. In all, the program is worth about $3.8 billion. The number of missiles being purchased is classified, but was re-duced by two-thirds last year, offi-

Instead, the air force is beginning to look at ways to improve on the current technology, which uses a two-stage rocket to launch a guided warhead that collides with the target satellite

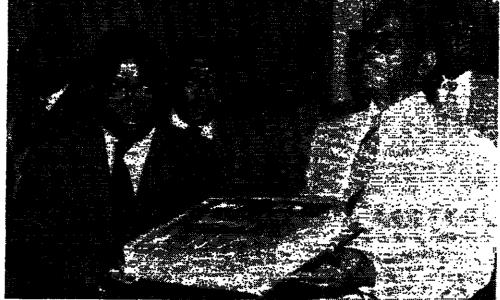

Some of the money in next year's budget request will be used to look into new technologies, including some from the Strategic Defense Initiative program, that could be used to destroy satellites orbiting beyond the range of the present missile. These include groundbased laser weapons and missiles able to reach higher into space.

Representative Les AuCoin, a Democrat of Oregon who was the author of legislation imposing the test moratorium, said Thursday that he could not imagine Congress granting permission to conduct tests of the anti-satellite weapon against space objects or appropriating anything near the amount of money that is being sought.

"It is a ridiculous proposition," said Mr. AuCoin, a member of the defense subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee. "It's like feeding caviar to a corpse."

He noted that the House had approved the test moratorium legislation by wide margins several times, and that it was the one arms control amendment out of several that passed the House last year to survive in a compromise bill worked out with the Senate, which at first had not imposed such a moratorium.

Mr. AuCoin said he would be willing to see the air force continue research into anti-satellite weapons on a modest scale, but that no tests of new technology against actual targets should be permitted.

WASHINGTON - The State Department has said in a confidential report delivered to Congress that the African National Congress is deeply obligated to Moscow and the South African Communist Party for military assistance in waging guerrilla warfare against the Pretoria government.

But the report is ambiguous on whether communism or black na-tionalism is the predominant ideology in South African resistance politics and particularly in such groups as the African National Congress, the principal gnerrilla or-ganization seeking to topple South Africa's white-run government.

Such requests often become part of legislation, and the department similarly was obliged to provide a report demanded by congressional liberals as to the extent of malnutrition in the so-called black homelands within South Africa.

That report found widespread hunger in the homelands and an infant mortality rate sharply above that for whites in South Africa as well as higher than that of blacks living in such urban areas as Soweto, near Johannesburg. The homelands are supposedly autonomous black entities created by the South African government in rural areas within South Africa's boundaries, but they are not recognized as independent by any gov-ernment other than Pretoria. Managua Adopts Constitution; Delay of Provisions Expected

MANAGUA — Nicaragua adopted on Monday its first constitution since the Sandinist government came to power seven years

The document is modeled largely on other Latin American constitu tions and espouses political pluralism, a mixed economy, nonalignment and anti-imperialism.

But the constitution, known here as the "carta magna," is not expected to alter significantly the country's political life, dominated by the Sandinist National Liberation Front that led the 1979 revolution against General Anastasio Somoza.

The document, approved Nov. 19 by the National Constituent Assembly after two years of work, guarantees freedom of expression. prohibits imprisonment without court order and guarantees the right to strike.

Government officials have said that the ideals expressed in the doc-ument could be hard to practice while war continues against an estimated 15,000 guerrillas for whom the U.S. Congress recently approved $100 million in mainly mili-

Most civil liberties in Nicaragua are severely curbed under state of emergency regulations imposed in 1985. The government has justified the measures, including press censorship and a ban on political rallies without government permission, by pointing to the military threat from the rebels.

The proclamation of the constitution coincided with widespread predictions that several of the articles concerning rights would have to be immediately suspended because of the state of emergency.

One hundred and fifty of the document's 202 articles can be suspended by the president "when the security of the nation, economic conditions or national catastrophe Rafael Solis, vice president of the

■ U.S. Trainees Return

The first group of Nicaraguan rebel commanders trained in Florida by the U.S. military has returned to Central America and training of a second group has be-gun, The New York Times reported from Washington.
At least 67 commanders from five guerrilla groups were trained for two months at a secret military site in Florida, according to several rebel officials. They said that special emphasis was given to the need for a more unified guerrilla movement as well as to basic military skills

Rebel officials say the training covered four main areas: paramed ical help, explosives, military lead-ership and instruction on how to train new recruits.

American and rebel officials estimate that more than 300 commanders will be trained this year in the new Reagan administration effort to forge the rebels into a guerrilla army capable of challenging the Sandinists inside Nicaragua This comes as administration and congressional officials acknowledge that future American backing for the rebels, known as contras, is in grave doubt.

A U.S. official who helps oversee rebel operations said, "It's ironic, but five years of backing the contras has really come down to what we can do in the next five months."

Shipments out of state in 1984 of popular chanterelle mushrooms totaled 500 tons, a 25-fold increase from five years earlier.

Ideas for a Latin Opening

There is a small new flare of diplomacy in Central America. Some of the Latin democracies, expecting a military surge in Nicaragua as the contras received fresh U.S. aid, have sought to head off the surge by reviving the Contadora peace talks. These talks have been in limbo since the United States pronounced their fruits of last summer unacceptably Javorable to the Sandinists. At the same time, Costa Rica, no powerhouse but a decent democratic country fearful of being drawn into the fire, is advancing an initiative to get all the world's democracies to shake a finger at Managua.

Is any of this for real? A deep galf remains between the Sandinists, who wish to consolidate power on their Marxist terms, and the United States, which is working through the contras to restore democracy to Nicaragua and break the Sandinists' Cuban and Soviet ties. Neither in Managua nor in Washington is flexibility visible. The Nicaraguan government seems determined to stave off the new military challenge of the contras, and the U.S. government seems equally determined to stave off the new political challenge of the Democrats. Still, it would be unforgivable for any reasonable negotiating opening not to be explored. There may be one. Though the Organization of American States is sidelined by internal divisions, its secretary-general, João Clemente Baena Soares, has oined an effort to revive Contadora. The United States has formally complained about the Brazilian diplomat's role. But why complain? The problem is not that the United States gets bad publicity because of its complaining; it can live with that. The point is, why not try to use the horsepower added by Mr. Baens Soares (and by his fellow Contadora recruit, UN Secretary-General Javier Pérez de Cuéllar) to explore some of the new ideas floating around? Such as the idea of making the next mayoral elections in Nicaragua a test of the Sandinist's avowed, if dubious, taste for pluralism.

All of the Latins except those most dependent on the United States say there is a better chance of reining in the Sandinists by political envelopment than by military assault. They may be fooling themselves, but the prevalence and political roots of this view leave the U.S. government pretty much isolated in its commitment to a contra enterprise lacking both military and political credibility in most Latin eyes. The American choice has always been between two different sorts of chances. The diplomatic chance at least offers the United States good Latin democratic company.

Right Man for the CIA

The sad truth about Washington's chief collector of secrets is no longer a secret. There seems to be no chance that William Casey, the director of central intelligence, can recover sufficiently from a cancer operation to resume his duties. Already the capital buzzes with speculation about who should succeed him. But in order to get the right who, there has to be a lot more thinking about how to make the choice.

The country has gone through enough turmoil involving the CIA; Mr. Casey's departure provides the chance to step back and consider the criteria for appointment. Should the next DCL as the incumbent is known, be a career intelligence officer, someone who knows the business and is detached from politics? Or should the next director be a close associate of the president, someone whose access to the Oval Office can open ears to the CIA's expertise?

The Casey example forms a strong argument that presidents and Congress should push hard for nonpolitical directors.

The DCI heads not only the CIA but the whole intelligence community, 100,000 people, with a budget in the billions. It includes the National Security Agency, which deals with communications, the National Reconnaissance Office, which manages spy satellites, and various Pentagon operations. There is no real problem with collection of information. People on the right and the left favor continued upgrading of these capabilities. The difficulties center on covert operations like the "secret" wars in Nicaragua and Afghanistan and the analyses of these wars and other events. The director plays a pivotal role in both these activities. Is he becoming an advocate for clandestine military action instead of offering a cool, professional evaluation? Is he distorting CIA analyses to make the operations look good and to fit policy instead of providing independent judgments?

asked about Mr. Casey. He deserves high marks for reinvigorating the agency. But suspicions of partisanship followed him ev-erywhere. He was Mr. Reagan's 1980 campaign manager, and the president broke all precedent by making him DCL Mr. Casey did not restrict himself to providing intelligence but became a strong policy advocate, particularly of covert actions.

The DCI's first task is to provide the president with reliable information, not to become a cheerleader or an apologist. Having a political pal of the president as director raises doubts about the analyses and the information, even if the doubts are unfounded. It clouds the integrity of the agency. At the same time, a careerist risks being too much a company man.

The DCi, after Senate confirmation, serves at the president's pleasure. It would probably be preferable that the director be hought of in the same way as the director of the FBI - Republican or Democrat, but neither a crony nor a strong partisan or policy advocate. The ideal candidate would be familiar with the intelligence business, but not a careerist; it would be someone who could serve a president of either party. The FBI director is also limited to one 10-year term. That model might be right for the director of central intelligence, though the job carries so much veiled power that a shorter term, say six years, might be better.

Meanwhile, with or without congressional guidelines, the president must soon pick a successor. It would be easy to choose a political ally from the Senate or a caretaker professional from the CIA. It would be farsighted to name a person outside partisan politics and above the intelligence bureaucracy. Here is the test: Is the candidate someone whom the next president would be pleased to keep on the job?

Learning to Produce

During the past two centuries, in all of the world's rich countries, labor has been moving out of agriculture into industry. Food production has not fallen because farmers' productivity has steadily risen. It has freed people for other kinds of work, making these economies grow and raising everybody's standard of living Now the same process is overtaking manufacturing. Within the past decade or so, in most of the industrial countries, employ-ment in manufacturing has been falling. But with only one exception, Britain, manufacturing output has continued to rise in the industrial democracies. Productivity is increasing, and labor is shifting from factories to services. It will be useful to keep this process in mind when legislation on competitiveness and trade protection begins to move through Congress. People in Congress often talk as if the number of jobs in manufacturing were the true measure of industrial strength. That is wrong. As factories learn to produce more goods with fewer people, prosperity rises.

But there are sharp variations from one country to another. The U.S. Labor Department has just published figures on manufacturing productivity through 1985 for most of the advanced countries. To see what is happening, it helps to compare national performance over a fairly long time — say, the dozen years beginning in 1973, when the long postwar boom ended. During those years the fastest gains in manufacturing productivity were made not in Japan but in Belgium, where it doubled; factory jobs there fell by more than a third. while output rose 20 percent. Japan's productivity gain was nearly as great, and since manufacturing jobs there held steady, output nearly doubled as well. The poorest performance in manufacturing productivity, among the major countries, was Cana-da's; having fallen into the habit of depending on its natural resources to generate its wealth, Canada has been careless about industrial efficiency. That carelessness has made its record even worse than that of the United States, the runner-up for last place. But in both countries, productivity (in manufacturing, although not in services) has picked up in the past several years. Could that signal a new and healthier trend? Maybe. Take a second look at Britain, which reached its peak year for manufac-turing employment in 1966. Its factory out-put is lower now than it was in 1973. But since 1980, productivity in manufacturing there has been rising at a rate approaching Belgium's and Japan's. With enough determination, it seems, sudden and dramatic changes are possible even for the laggards.

Spill a Little Sweetness

Trans-Atlantic economic conflict is recurring with increasing ferocity. The latest dispute arises from threatened U.S. exports to Spain worth £340 million [$500 million] a year. The row may yet be resolved before the Feb. 1 deadline for a U.S. retaliatory strike against EC comestibles. If not, the EC is threatening its own retaliation, which could touch off an orgy of commercial vio-lence between the allies. Both sides, but Washington especially, should allow political and military friendship to spill a little sweetness into [their] commercial relations. - The Independent (London).

U.S. Diplomacy Can Be Revived

PARIS —"It is important to send I the message that we're not dead in the water," a senior State Department officer said recently, as trips to the Middle East and Eastern Europe were set up for the U.S. officials re-sponsible for those areas, and Secretary of State George Shuitz set out for Africa. But alas, American diplomacy is dead, stone dead, in the water. Mr. Shultz's African visit is largely ceremonial. Assistant Secretary of State Richard Murphy carried no proposals with him to Amman, Jerum and Cairo last week. He was authorized to inform the govern-ments in those capitals that the United States "would be helpful if it could" to the Middle Eastern peace process, such as it is. He inquired if they might have some suggestions. It is difficult to imagine what Deputy Secretary of State John Whitehead is to say to the East European governments that can be constructive.

What is there to say? That a U.S. government still exists? That it would like to put together a policy that could repair the devastation caused in recent weeks to allied relations and American diplomatic credibility?

Defense Minister Giovanni Spadolini of Italy is one European who has been a friend to the United States, at some personal political cost, as well as a staunch enemy of terrorism. He said a few days ago, dryly, that while feeling personally "disillusioned" by American conduct, "the American political system with its checks and balances should be able to find a way..." He added, "This is a wish -not a certainty."

Even before the Iranian arms affair, the Reagan administration had used up the stock of foreign policy government, never known to lack re-

The United States finally resorted to the saving hypocrisy of declaring that it had won while abandoning its client to defeat. Conceivably the Soviet The United States and Pakistan have

The Revigavik summit meeting ended with President Reagan's instinctive utopianism defeated by a hair's-breadth. Some American officials insist that major arms agree-ments even now are blocked only by technicalities, and the lack of will to overcome those technicalities.

How, for example, is a "laboratory" to be defined, as in the "laboratory testing" of space defense systems? Does a laboratory have to have a roof over it? Can there be a "laboratory test" outside a laboratory? This is the kind of problem diplomats were invented to solve, if the political will to a solution existed. Does it exist in Washington? Can Mr. Reagan be persuaded to impose his will?

The Middle East is in a dreadful state. The United States is the one country involved there that is in a position to do something. Jerusalem Amman, Cairo, Damascus and the Palestinian factions all, for different reasons, are incapable of initiative. A Reagan administration foreign policy could be resuscitated. There is no lack of things to do. Professionals in the State Department know what needs doing. The secretary of state could tomorrow take to the president a list of problems the United States might constructively and profitably address over the next two years. He could appeal to Mr. Reagan's ideal-ism, his desire to be thought well of by history. Surely the president might be persuaded that the only way his administration will end well is by burying its past mistakes and trying to do something serious now.

It is a weakness of the American system that everything depends on the president as an individual, In-Britain, the cabinet as a whole bears responsibility for government, and its members can, and must, act on their own authority if the prime minister falters. This is not the case for the American cabinet, its members cannot act without the president, and Mr. Reagan, in difficulty, is known to back away from action. But those who have accepted cabinet office have accepted the moral responsibilities of power. The members of Mr. Reagan's cabinet, Mr. Shultz in particular, are better placed than anyone to save the president, his administration, and with that, sal-vage something of the abused reputation of the nation.

The Oil Glut Brings On Amnesia By Charles K. Ebinger

WASHINGTON — In 1986, the United States and much of the rest of the industrialized world larget the energy lessons of the 1970s. With the prices of gasoline and home-heal-ing fuel at the lowest levels in 13-years, and with an administration espousing the wisdom of the marketslace, consumers and the government have been fulled into complacency.

This cavalier attitude has begin to unravel the efforts of three presidents - Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter - to ensure the nation's long-term energy security. The goal of the now-defunct Synthetic Fuels Corp. to produce two million barrels a day of alternative incis by 1990 is only a memory. The solar industry is reeling. Conservation credits have expired, and automakers have led the charge to roll back fuelefficiency standards. President Resgan reportedly favors rescinding the 55-mph (90-kph) speed limit. How short Americans' memories are of the gasoline lines of 1973 and 1979, the devastation of ouco-great basic industries, and the danger of depending on the politically volatile Middle East for much of their oil. Unless the United States rapidly reverses course, it will depend on oil imports for more than 50 percent of its consumption within four years.

The 1973 and 1979 oil shocks dramatized one vital fact: America cannot base its future on oil. Nearly half the energy used nationally in 1979 was oil, and more than 43 percent of that amount had to be imported. Americans realized they had to ent back on burning oil when other energy sources could do the job, and rely more on abundant domestic sources.

especially coal and uranium. Both lessons were undone in 1986. Oil imports are up nearly one million barrels per day, to levels equivalent to those of 1973. Natural gas reserves will fall precipitously this year. Nearly two-thirds of American oil and natural-gas contract drilling compa-nies have gone bankrupt. Domestic oil production has plummeted by half a million barrels per day. If Americans remain on this path, the question is not whether they will face another energy crisis, but when. Consider the developments of 1986 that led Americans astray: First, the so-called good news about prices. The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries essen-tially disintegrated as a price-setting mechanism, and the price of oil dropped from $30 to about $8 before it began inching back up. Most U.S. citizens reveled in their good fortune, but thousands of others dependent the oil ind homes and faith in the American dresm. Oil imports are soaring while Americans are guzzling cheap energy. Second, the accident at the Chernobyl nuclear reactors. Although Chemobyl's technology has virtually nothing in common with those of most American nuclear plants (at a meeting in Vienna, the head of the Soviet nuclear-power program said he doubted a similar accident could occur in any U.S. reactor), the accident frightened many American politicians. This is making it even more difficult to boister the country's capacity for generating nuclear energy, which along with coal, is its best bet for replacing imported oil.

Third, the Reagan administration?

deep cutback in funds for developing "renewable" technologies. Funds for solar power and other new technoloxics, as well as tax credits for their use, have been out to the bone. During his presidential campaign, Mr. Reagan attacked his rivals with the phrase, "There you go again!" It is the Reagan administration, sadly, that is encouraging policies that threaten U.S. national security.

In the late 1970s, the United States was looking beyond the age of abundant oil. It was significantly increas-ing the amount of electricity generated by coal and nuclear energy, developing new technologies and promoting conservation.

Today, the nation is curtailing development of new energy sources, adding still more obstacles to the additional use of mclear power and rapidly incressing its dependence on oil and the Middle East.

Future historians may have a difficult time trying to explain why America reversed course. The events of 1986 may receive much of the blame, but the real fault lies with those who do not remember the lessons of 1973 and 1979 and are unwilling to plan for the global crisis that lies ahead.

They are some of the least effective programs we have, and if we admit we're in a budget crisis, we have to reduce some spending to meet the deficit targets and make room for initiatives that are worthwhile

Policy Priorities is the source of many liberal critiques of Mr. Reagan's fiscal policy, conceded that whatever its overall deficiencies, the administration budget has some "things that are good and useful." "I was pleased," he said, "that Bill Brock," the U.S. secretary of Almost every one of the budget experts I interviewed had large or small reservations about other parts of the Reagan blueprint. But they were saying, "Don't throw out the baby with the bathwater."

Washington tends to dismiss any ideas that come from a politician or president who is in trouble. Mr. Reagan has had serious reverses.

The Pardon as an Index of Tyranny

WASHINGTON - In 1982, Albania held an election that Enver Hoxha, the Communist Party chief, won by 1,627,959 votes to 1, A decisive victory. It suggested to me at the time a key to what political phi-losophers had long been seeking: a reliable tyranny index. The Tirana Index, named after Al-bania's capital, holds that repressiveness correlates with electoral success. The higher the score rolled up by the ruling party in elections, the more tyrannous the regime. At one end of the spectrum are places like Albania, the Soviet Union and Syria, where 99 percent of the vote is the norm. At the other end are freewheeling semi-anarchies, like Italy, where it is unsafe to drive and where the ruling party never gets half the vote. In between lie orderly democracies like the United States (winning margins of 60 percent, tops) and moder-ate autocracies like Mexico that will broach 70 but not much more for fear of embarrassment to all concerned.

A few weeks ago, the Tirana Index met yet another challenge. In the midst of a severe food and energy shortage, Romania held a referen-dum. The result: 17,699,772 Romanians voted yes, no one voted no. A shutout. A perennial contender for the honor of the most repressive regime on earth (in Romania, all type-writers must be registered with the police) had conducted what may be the most perfect election yet.

The Tirana Index is a proven instrument. But events over the holi-days have persuaded me that, notwithstanding its accuracy and elegance, there is another measure of tyramy, more subtle and more quali-tative, that needs to be explored. Call it the Pardon Index: The more lawless, capricious and imperious a re-gime, the greater its propensity to make use of the power to pardon.

There have been a lot of pardous issued over the holidays. In the most famous of these, Mikhail Gorbachev phoned Andrei Sakharov and released him from exile in Gorky, to which Mr. Sakharov had been banished as arbitrarily as he has now been recalled. His wife, Yelena Bonner, was granted a formal pardon for "anti-Soviet activities."

It makes of freedom a legal indulgence, an act of sevendipity.

In Nicaragna, Engene Hasenfus, convicted by a People's Tribunal and sentenced to 30 years in prison, served 10 weeks before he was placed in Senator Christopher Dodd's Christmas stocking for return to Wisconsin. Caught up in the same holiday spirit, terrorists calling them selves the Revolutionary Justice Organization chose Aurel Cornéa, one of five Frenchmen held captive in Lebanon, and freed him.

A pardon is a wonderful thing, particularly if you are the one being pardoned, and particularly if, like the Sakharovs and Mr. Cornea, you are innocent. As for Mr. Hasenfus, he can be considered either a criminal or a prisoner of war, depending on whether or not you believe he qualifies as a combatant in a civil war.

But in terms of politics or justice, the pardon is a fraud, "In all supremacy of power," said a 17th-century philosopher, "there is inherent a prerogative to pardon." The reverse is equally true: In all prerogative to pardon, there is inherent the supremacy of power. The logic of the pardon is that justice is a gift to be dispensed by power. It makes of freedom a legal indulgence, a grant, an act of seren-dipity. What is intended as a show of > cynicism, a display of arbitrary power (why elemency for A, and not for B?) for political ends. Consider the manner in which the Soviets announced Mr. Sakharov's release. It betrayed the gesture's true purpose, which was to impress not Russians, but Westerners. The announcement on the Sakharovs came first from the Soviet Foreign Ministry. It is as if George Shultz, the U.S.

humanity is often a mere show of secretary of state, were to announce clemency for a convicted murderer. The free exercise of speech subsequently permitted to Mr. Sakharov has been similarly one-sided. He has appeared all over American television; he has yet to play Moscow. In democracies, the pardon should be used sparingly, not for dispensing clemency but for righting obvious miscarriages of justice that are other-wise irremediable. Only in the rarest of occasions should it supplant the workings of ordinary justice. Free countries have another mechanism for dealing with that. It is called law. The promiscuous dispensation of clemency is not a sign of political liberality, but one of those identifying marks of tyranny - like winning an election with a perfect score. Washington Post Writers Group.

ARTS/LEISURE

The Sistine: Paradise Restored? By Mary Davis Suro New York Times Service ROME—In the six years since Gianhingi "I feel a general anxiety," said Colalucci, of the Arts in the Vatican Minseums at the Unit States provide linghly valued support, a cording to museum officials. Despite the figure and has been working at the Vatican The Sistine: Paradise Restored? dentials. Also, the New York-based Patron of the Arts in the Vatican Minseums at the States provide linghly valued support, a cording to museum officials. Despite the figure and has been working at the Vatican trelian art scholars have expressed

ing in the Sistine Chapel to work face to face with the powerful images of Michelangelo's frescoed ceiling, his hair has changed from brown with some gray to almost entirely white. And his face, which until recently generated a certain spontaneous pride and enthusiasm when he spoke of his position as the chief of the Vatican's program to restore more than 16,700 square feet (1,536 square meters) of Renaissance frescoes, now can quickly turn defensive and hostile.

With about half of the restoration work behind him, and Colabucci's attention turning toward the cleaning of the highly com-plet "Fall and the Expulsion," the Vatican has been beset by criticism from both home and abroad. Colabucci admits that the criticism has produced a change in his feelings about the project.
The first complaints, primarily from artists, did not get much attention, but in recent months the project has become the subject of heated debate here.

The Italian Communist Party newspaper L'Unità recently ran a story about Colalucc's work under the headline, "Restauro assassino" (Restoration Assassin?). The Vatican's indirect reply came at a conference on restoration held by Italy's National Re-search Council in early November. At the conference Colahucci and Fabrizio Mancinelli, curator for Byzantine, medieval and modern art at the Vatican Museums, explained the safeguards built into the restoration effort. The standing-room-only crowd of scholars, technicians and officials applanded loudly, repeatedly. For Colalucci this was a sign that despite the increasing the second of t dissent in some quarters, his project still has broad support.

Praise greeted the first phases of the 12-year project, which aims at cleaning away the centuries of dust, soot and grease that have accumulated on the surface of Michelangelo's masterpiece. The effort was undertaken partly because Vatican restorers were concerned that the ceiling was suffering from water damage and peeling paint in some places. However, they also realized a cleaning could substantially enhance the appearance of the frescoes. And although some scholars might have found it difficult to reconcile the brilliant colors of the newly cleaned frescoes with the traditional conception of a Michelangelo who favored form and line over color, almost no one initially questioned the integrity of the project.

Complaints from recent opponents are as diverse as the theories on how Michelangelo painted. One critic argues that the restorers may be removing a layer of brushstrokes that the painter applied a secco, after the wet paint on wet plaster had dried. Another critic charges that Michelangelo might have used candle soot and animal fat to create murky shadows on his frescoes.

The objections generally focus on two points: whether Michelangelo's work is be-ing altered by the cleaning solvent, and since 1960. "There is nothing in particular that I worry about, but still the mood is very heavy. It's a shame too. We're beginning work on a picture that is extraordinarily beautiful and at the highest technical level. This should be exciting but instead I'm wor-

One of Colalucci's worries these days is James Beck, the chairman of the department of art history and archaeology at Columbia University and a scholar of Renaissance art. In an article in the October issue of Arts magazine, Beck raised a warning about the long-term effects of the restoration. "Would it not be safer and sounder to wait, even as long as a generation, if necessary," he wrote, "to a time when the techniques are in such a state that even the most subtle applications of substances that Michelangelo may have applied himself to unify and consolidate the work could be preserved, if indeed there are any? What is the hurry anyway; no one has claimed that the frescoes are in imminent

Beck, who states that "until quite recently I counted myself among those favorably impressed with the enterprise," writes that he became alarmed when he saw Raphael's "Isaiah" in Rome's Sant'Agostino Church and the 14th-century frescoes - not by Michelangelo - on the side walls of the Sistine Chapel that had been restored less than 10 years ago. Recalling that when he had seen them immediately after restoration, these paintings had seemed fresh and vivid, Beck said that they now seemed "undistinguished and flat."

Beck's dissent has had an impact at the Vatican for several reasons. For one, none of the other critics enjoy Beck's academic credentials. Also, the New York-based Patrons of the Arts in the Vatican Museums and other similar organizations in the United States provide highly valued support, according to museum officials. Despite the fact that Italian art scholars have expressed far more caustic criticism of the restoration, Beck's critique seems to have affected Colafucci the most because it comes from an early enthusiast and a respected colleague.

"All of the people who supported us at first still support us," said Colahoci, then referring to Beck as "Punico pentito," the only one who has repented. Beck, however, notes in his article that he is not alone, and that others have issued warnings similar to his. Colalucci argues that while Beck can voice opinions based on subjective observations, "All I can do is present the facts. And these facts are based on the hundreds of individual analyses and photographs examining the frescoes and the layers of material that have accumulated on top of them. This, plus my daily exposure to the frescoes for the past six years, is what I rely on."

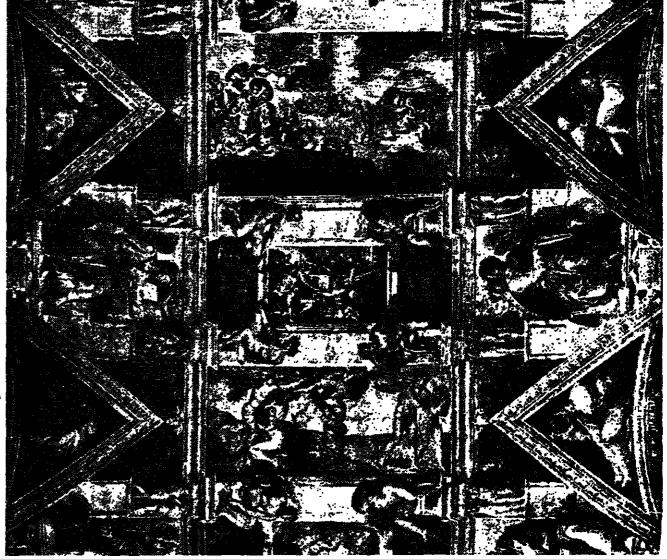

Sitting in his office in the Vatican Muse-ums' Pinacoteca, which houses paintings and apestries from the 11th to the 19th centuries, Colalucci recently responded to the points raised by Beck in the Arts magazine article and in subsequent statements. The restorer agreed with the professor that there are pollutants in the air today that did not exist when Michelangelo was at work on the chapel, but he said studies show there are no short-term dangers. Moreover, he said, it is maccurate to say the cleaning robbed the frescoes of their protection and leaves them more vulnerable than before.

Frescoes were created with absolutely no protection," he said. They are not like paintings that are finished with a layer of varnish. There is nothing added to them. When they are produced perfectly they are the most stant art form that exists."

Colaboci insisted that the extensive studies conducted before and during the restoration indicated there was no danger in cleaning the paintings. In particular, he argued, the tests show that none of Michelangelo's work is being removed. For example, micromples of any a secco painting are tested for the presence of zinc white. A positive reading is a sure sign the paint is not Michelangelo's because paint using that substance was not invented until the 18th century.

As for the 20th century, efforts have been made to ensure that the frescoes will not be inordinately bombarded by the wide range of today's pollutants. The Vatican has pro-posed three separate controls. The first, already installed, is a floor board covered by a special dust-absorbing carpet. It covers the staircase leading to the chapel and part of the chapel floor. Another is a soon-to-beinstalled an environmental control system.

Colalucci raised strong objections to Beck's idea of halting restoration for a reassessment or in anticipation of new technologies. He maintained this would be "foolishness that could ruin the works." There would be a great risk in doing only a partial restoraaesthetic damage to the frescoes. One section would look so different from another, as one would be much dustier." As an assurance that restoration was not causing damage visible over time he suggested examination of the frescoes cleaned at the start of the project nearly six years ago. "Go see them," he urged. "They're still there, and they are

As Colalucci sees it, the controversy over the restoration effort and, in particular, its instigators can be divided into two parts: one reasonable, the other decidedly not. There are people who don't accept the cleaning and can't accept new image of Michelangelo," he noted.

While Colalucci respects those who refuse to accept the idea of a "new" Michelangelo, he brusquely rejects those who claim that the frescoes might be damaged by the restoration or those who say the restorers could be removing touch-ups painted by the Renais-

In addition to soot from candles and braziers, the frescoes have been subject to repeated interventions dating perhaps as far back as the late 16th century. The frescoes, Colalucci said, were altered by heavy-handed restorers like Annibale Mazzuoli who. from 1710 to 1713, cleaned them with Greek wine and then touched them up with tempera paints. "You cannot talk about the Sistine Chapel as if it were an Etruscan tomb, discovered only yesterday exactly as Michelangelo left it," he said. "As restorers, we have had to deal with what came to us and we face some very complex situations up

Given the complexity of his task Colalucci emphasizes a distinction between the philosophy of art and the science of restoration the art historian versus the art restorer. "Restorers, like myself, must know everything that art historians know plus much more."

To be an art historian, Colalucci explained. doesn't necessarily mean that one is an expert on the materials that make up a work of art. "The only people qualified to be making statements about possible risks to the frescoes," he said, "are those who can look into a microscope and tell the difference between the color green, for example, used by Michelangelo and a color of nearly the exact same hue but which never appeared on Michelangelo's palette. Or, those persons," be continued, "who can recognize whether a brush stroke is Michelangelo or that of Mazzuoli.

For Colalucci, the future seems to offer little relief from worry. "I feel like a soccer player before the championship game these days," he said with resignation. "I wish I could go on a retreat and be entirely cut off from the world, so that I could concentrate on what I have to do and not these other things. This all creates a kind of stress which doesn't let you work with tranquillity.

Barenboim's Trial 'Siegfried'

By David Stevens

onal Herald Tribune PARIS — Deniel Barenboim is scheduled to conduct the next new production of Wagner's "Ring der Nibelungen" tetralogy at the Bayreuth Festival in 1988, a dannting prospect in an age when fewer and fewer conductors have a chance to grow up with it in the opera house. So he has been including it, a bit at a time, in his programs with the Orchestre de Paris the latest chapter being an exhilarating, splendidly east third act of "Siegfried."

There is a lot to be said for this approach, aside from giving Barenim a chance to warm up for Bayrenth. The final act of "Siegfried" is one of the most musically rich but theatrically static in all the "Ring." so it is particularly suitable for the concert format. It fits in with the tich Germanic diet the orchestra and its public have been getting during the decade of Barenboam's musical directorate. And the Paris public, long without a complete staged "Ring" cycle on home ground, is hungry for all it can get. (Admittedly, this bas included Radio France's complete "Ring" in concert lest seems under Marek concert last season under Marek Janowski,) string sound, but there are compensations, and on Thursday at the Salle Pleyel the orchestra was in excellent form on its own terms and responsive to Barenboim's demands. If these demands tended to emphasize the episodic aspect rather than the grand design, that is inherent in an act that is itself episodic and being presented out of context. And if the sound of the orchestra on stage sometimes drowned the singers, the sunken pit at Bayreuth will take care of that.

Vocally, this music could hardly be better represented, especially since Wotan and Siegfried could appear fresh instead of at the end of a long evening. Donald McIntyre, with craggy profile and snowy beard, and his warm bass-baritone dense with experience, is a Wotan still formidable but ready to lay down the weight of the world. Siegfried Jerusalem might have trouble with the orchestra in the Act 1 forging of the sword, but here he was well nigh perfect —handsome, lyrical and youthful, yet with ample power. Vietnam Says It Killed 1,500 Chinese at Border

BANGKOK -- Hanoi radio reported Friday that Vietnamese forces have killed 1,500 Chinese soldiers in border battles this week.

In Beijing, a Foreign Ministry spokesman declined to comment directly on the report, saying only that Chinese forces had fought Victnamese troops for at least three days, beginning Monday.
"It is learned that the provocative intrusions by Vietnamese troops were repulsed on the evening of Jan. 7," the Chinese spokesman said.

The Chinese Foreign Ministry does not normally give its own fig-ures in response to Vietnamese allegations of Chinese troop deaths in border clashes.

Although the Chinese spokes-man would not elaborate on his tence statement, the ministry on Wednesday dismissed earlier nese claims of 500 Chinese dead as "boasting" and an attempt to deceive Vietnamese and world public opinion.

In its account of the fighting on Wednesday, China said that its forces repulsed Vietnamese attacks and that more than 200 Vietnamese soldiers had been killed.

Diplomats said that Hanoi's 1,500 figure, if confirmed, would be the highest since the countries fought a brief war in 1979. The two sides have had intermittent clashes since then, and both sides have blamed the other for starting the latest fighting.

In its Friday broadcast, monitored here, the Hanoi radio said. While our government is clearly showing its goodwill and desire for peace and friendship with the Chi-

A Victoamese Embassy spokesman in Beijing said Friday that he did not know whether the three days of fighting had continued bevond Wednesday.

Western diplomats in Beijing were skeptical about the accuracy of the Vietnamese casualty esti-mates, although they indicated that there had been serious fighting.

The diplomats said the timing of the fighting, if initiated by China, might be linked to political developments that are putting increasing pressure on Vietnam to break the passe over Cambodia.

The Soviet Union appealed to the new team of Vietnamese leaders to renew a dialogue with Beijing. But China has said that better itions depend on Vietnam pulling its forces out of Cambodia, where they are helping the Heng Samin administration against a guerrilla coalition. The diplomats said the Chinese could be seeking to drive this point home by launching a strong attack against the Vietnamese.

Thai and Western officials in Bangkok said the border fighting was among the worst between the two countries since 1979.

Vietnam said China fired 60,000 mortar rounds and artillery shells up to 11 miles (18 kilometers) into its territory on Wednesday. This would rival major World War II actions, diplomats said.

On Dec. 23, Mr. Cowell was told the Ministry of Home Affairs that his long-standing application for a renewal of his work permit, which expired June 19, had been refused. The ministry told Mr. Cowell to leave South Africa not later than Jan. 10.

Since June 19, Mr. Cowell had been able to work in South Africa because his application for a new work permit was under consideration by the anthorities.

Mr. Cowell, 39, is a British subject who has worked as a staff correspondent for The New York Times since 1981, first in Nairobi, and then in Johannesburg. He was previously a correspondent for Reuters in West Germany, Turkey, Lebanon, Zambia and Zimbabwe.

The decision to order him to leave South Africa apparently was made by Stoffel Botha, minister of home affairs. The minister was asked directly by The Times and through diplomatic channels by U.S. officials to reconsider his decision, but declined three times. The newspaper's editors offered to meet with him in South Africa to discuss any problems, but the authorities turned down the sugges-tion. A request to reconsider Mr. Schmemann's status was rejected.

The first notice to The Times ne less than two weeks after the authorities announced a tightening of censorship rules in force since an emergency decree took effect June 12, 1985.

■ Bombing at Store

South Africa accused the African National Congress of planting a bomb that ripped through an eightstory department store in central Johannesburg on Friday, seconds after hundreds of shoppers had been evacuated, Renters reported.

Policemen at the scene said scores of casualties were prevented by an alert security guard who spotted the bomb in a plastic bag less than 10 minutes before the blast at the OK Bazaars Store, where management and black workers are having a wage dispute.

Negotiations Between Signor Crispi and the Chanceller,

THE EASTERN QUESTION AGAIN.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.] FRIEDRICESRUH, Oct. 3, 1887.—Signor Crispi, accompanied by his secretaries left here at eight o'clock this morning. Prince bispark and count Herbert Bismark accompanied the Italian Premier to the railway station, walking with him to the door of the saloon carriage. Count de Lamay, the Italian Ambassador, has returned to Berlin.

According to a special Berlin telegram, to-lay's Figure, the Bulgarian question was raised at the Friedrichsrul interview, and settled in a sense favorable to Russia Prince Interitimsky, and not General Ernrath, is said to belikely to go to Bulgaria Russian envoy.

Another special Viennese telegram states that a triple alliance was signed at the Rous, October 8, 1887. I am able to confirm the rumor that Signor Crispi's mysterious journey to Freidrichsruh is directly connected with an attempt to settle the Roman question. Bulgarian affairs may be touched on incidentally in the conferences of the Chaucellor and the Italian Premier; but the main object of Prince Bismarck when he encouraged-if indeed he did not invite-Signor Crispi to undertake his journey was to prepare a reconciliation of the Pope and King Humbert, and so re-unite German Catholics and Protestants.

Prince Bismarck has, from politic reasons, long been manœuvering to obtain the advantages attaching to the position of a protector of the Papacy.

A lew days ago king humbert was officially, though secretly, informed that the Chancellor would be glad to confer with Signor Crispi on various matters of international importance, and letting it be understood that one of the these matters might be connected with the long-talked of reconciliation.

This is all that can be learnt with certainty with regard to the Friedrichsruh interview; but there is reason to believe that the basis of the reconciliation suggested was to be the cossion to the Pope of all, or part, of Rome situate on the left bank of the Tiber.

WHAT HE USED TO SAY. Some months since, in a conversation with Mgr. Galimberti at Vienna, I sounded with Mgr. Galimberti at Vienna, I sounded that able diplomat as to the likelihood of such an arrangement being accepted by the Vatican. Speaking perhaps with the remembrance of the recent diplomatic georeges of the Catholic Church in Germany strong in his mind, the Papal Nuncio remarked: "This would evidently not suffice for the dignity of the Holy Sec." I have no reason to think that the Pope is inclined to be more vielding now than is inclined to be more yielding now than hast spring. At the same time Lee XIII w .uld scarcely refuse to negotiate on the basis of the restoration of the "Leonine"

City.
What alterior interest Prince Bismarck may have in raising the Roman question at this particular moment remains to be seen; but it is, at least, probable that his chief aim is to ensure Germany's being able to the chief aim is to ensure Germany's being able to show a united front to France in the possible event of foreign complica-

LONDON NOTES.

GOSSIP IN THE CITY AND IN POLITICAL AND SOCIAL CIRCLES.

[SY THE HERALD'S SPECIAL WIRE.] LONDON, OCT. 4, 1887. A strong article in The Army and Navy Magazine published to-day shows decidedly, if its facts and statistics are true, that the recent cession to Russia of frontier land by the Afghan Commission at the instigation of Sir West Ridgway, one of its members and now successor to Sir Redvers Buller at Dublin Castle, really gives the Russians the key to Herat and Candiliar. This is because the ceded territory constitutes a camping ground for a Russian isrmy of 150,000 men and with fertile supplies. The article bristles with startling facts as to the blunder. THE PRESIDENT TRIP.

A VERY UNPLEASANT INCIDENT AT TER-RA HAUTE.

[BY COMMERCIAL CARLE TO THE REPAID.] NEW YORK, Oct. 3, 1887.

In Indianapolis Saturday, President Cleveland was escorted from the cars to the State House by a civic and military procession, where, in the presence of 25,000 people, he was welcomed by Governor Gray. He then received the people in the State House Rotunds, and after lunching at the residence of Senator .. Mecdonald, he left for Terre Haute.

WELCOMED EVERYWHERE. At the latter city an address of welcome was made by Richard Thompson. The Presiden: made a brief address to the populace and took the train for Saint Louis, where he arrived after midnight. On his way to the station in Terre Haute a middle aged enthusiast grasped the president's carriage from behind. The driver whipped up and tried to leave him, but in vain.

FURCE OF KIND WORDS. The President's escort ordered the man away, but he energetically refused. Two or three of the mounted men tried to ride him down, but he carse! them savagely and refused to leave the side of the carriage. Mrs. Cleveland turne I to him and said: -" I'lease let go, sir"; and the fellow dropped off as if he had been shot, and slipped away in the darkness. From Terre Hante to St. Louis the journey was made without incident.

The President and his suit will leave St. Louis for Chicago to-morrow evening. ITINERARY OF THE REMAINDER OF HIS SOUTH-WESTERN TRIP.

A PARISH CONCERT.

AN ENJOYABLE EVENING AT THE

AMERICAN CHUBCH. The sixth concert of the series to be given in the church rooms, 19 Avenue de l'Alma, under the direction of Mr. C. Lawrence Seker, took place last night be-Schloezer, he laid great stress on this point of his policy. On the occasion of Mgr. Galimberti's visit to Berlin last spring, the Chancellor took the opportunity of making it known to the Pontiff that he took a very real interest in the Roman-question, and subsequently outlined his policy in a semi-official communication to the Vatican.

A few days ago King Humbert was officially, though secretly, informed that the Chancellor would be glad to confer with Signor Crispi on various matters of international importance, and letting it be fore a fair and appreciative audhence. Magnus, Mr. Danvers, Mr. Ernest Wood, Mr. George Mac-Master, Mr. J. Humphreys, Mr. Parkinson, Mr. Stephen P. Barter, Mr. R. Meyrick Roberts. Miss O'Rorke saug "La Favorite" with feeling and power. Two seemes from the fifth act of "The Hunchback," interpreted by Miss Hooper and Mr. Danvers, formed a special feature of the entertainment. Miss feature of the entertainment. Miss Hooper was sweet and girlish in the part of Helen. Mr. Danvers was excellent as the lover, and his repeated appearances with Miss Hooper in private theatricals have been much appreciated by their audiences. The choir boys "Wanderers Night Song," Mr. Luckx' air from Enlercment du Serail," and Mr. Magnus's "Fantasie Suedoise," were encored several times.

ANOTHER NAVY ACCIDENT. FAULTY TACKLE CAUSING THE DEATH

OF A STOKER. A fatal accident occurred on Sunday on board her Majesty's ship Temeraire shortly after she had anchored at Spithead, on arrival from the Mediterranean station with relieved crews. While the steam pineace was being hoisted out on the starboand bow, ready for lowering when required, a hook of the purchase suddenly gave way, with the result that the craft was precipitated into the water, sinking stern foremost. There was three men in the pinnace—a stoker named Finch, who was in the stoke hol: getting ready the fires, and two able seamen who were adjust-ing the tackle. Perceiving the danger in time, the seamen jumped into the water, receiving some hurt in doing so, but Finch was mable to extricate himself from his positio, and it is believed that he received a heavy blow on the head from some of the falling tackle, which dashed out his brains. As she fall almost perpendicularly, the pinnace glanced against the protruding muzzle of a Nordenfelt gun, and the force of the contact occasioned some structural damage, several large splinters flying in all directions. Finch sank with the pinnace. As soon as the two seamen had been rescued a signal was made to the dockyard for a diver, who commenced his work as soon as possible. He discovered the pinnac: bottom upwards, but no immediate efforts could be made to raise her, and Finch's body had not last night been

The Parchase of United States Bonds Threatens the Market.

[BY THE HERALD'S SPECIAL WIDE.]

LONDON,)
MONDAY, Oct. 3, 1887-6 P.M. Eastward the star of Gold's cupire took its way yesterday. Chili, on the steamer Galicia, sent £147,830; the West Indies, per Medway, sent £142,837; the Fulds and Aurania, from New York, landed £31,720; the Mondego from the River Plate, brought about £10,000, and the Umbria sailed from New York with about £20,000 more. No bullion movements took place at the Bank. This state of facts opened tenders for a million and a half of Treasury bills. The average rate rid of their other stocks. per cent. on the allotted amounts was on three months' bills £8 11s. 4d., and on six months' bills £3 10s. 11d. Call money has been in good demand at three and a half to four per cent., and discount rate for three months' bills was firm at three and seven eightlis per cent. The stock markets were as quiet as Russian politics. In dealings such as there were both New York and London found Americans receding. Among home railways Metropolitan Consolidated fell 🗶, South Eastern and Brighton deferred X, and Great Western, North Western and Midland 1/4; but Chatham Ordinary North British and North Eastern rose X. Among American and Canadian railways St. Paul fell 11/4, New York Central X, Lake Shore and Atlantic first mortgage 1/4, Erie and Louisville %. and Con ral Pacific, Denver, Ohio and Mississipi, Ontario and Reading X. Mexican Railway First Preference and Ordinary receded X and ditto Second preference 1/4. Grand Trunk Stocks were steady, but Mexican Railway showed weakness. In the foreign market several of the International descriptions improved on Paris prices. Consols may be quoted as stationary at 101% for money, and 101% for account. There seems no longer room fo doubt that the full amount of Bonds whi the United States Secretary of the Treasury is willing to buy will be sold to him. His purchases therefore will end on Saturday next; and the question is being eagerly asked: "What will happen then? Bond purchases, interest payment, and pension payments together will have transferred by that time about £5,000,000 sterling from the Treasury to the market; but on the other hand the collection of the taxes is taking into the Treasury over £100,000 a day, in the course of a few weeks when the accumulations in the Treasury will have counterbalanced the disbursements now going on ; and unless something further is done the money market will be once more disturbed. Following are the latest quotations :-REITER AND INDIANCE AND REITER COLUMNIA AND REITER

HIGH TREASON.

AN ANARCHIST PRISONER TRIED WITH CLOSED DOORS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE BERALD.] LEIPZIG, Oct. 3, 1887.—The case of the anarchist Christopher Neve, accused of high treason, came on for trial at nine o'clock this morning. A large force of policy was in attendance to preserve order. The prisoner, who in his examination persisted in denying his identity with the anarchist Neve admitted it to-day. Herr Tessendorff demanded that the proceedings should be held with closed doors to which the court

TRAVELLING IRISH ORATORS.

Very Little Hope of Another Race With the Thistle.

HORRIBLE LONG ISLAND MUNDER.

The Rev. Dr. Parker of the London Temple in Plymouth Church. _____

[BY CONVERCIAL CASLE TO THE HEBALD.] New York, Oct. 3, 1887.

The coming political campaign, from outset, has promised to be lively; but an element has now been added that will materially increase its interest. The Anarchists were kicked out of the Labor Convention by Mr. Heury George and Herr Shevitch. The leader of the expelled Auarchists, has challenged Henry George to a public debate. George has accepted, and if the liveliest kind of row is not the result politicians will be mistaken.

THE LABOR CONVENTION The annual assembly of the Knights of Labor will be convened in Minneapolis to-morrow. Great inte est centres in the election of a Master Workman. President Master Workman Powderly is too conservative to please the more advanced members. A strong opposition will attempt to oust him and elect a Master Workman more given to ordering atrikes. The present outlook however stampery favors the success of Mr. Powderly and the conservative element. GOING INTO BUSINESS An effort will be made to get Knights of Labor to take some action regarding the Chicago auarchists now under sentence of murder, and also to induce the order as a body to carry on a co-operative establishment. The Knights are now doing that in Minnesota, where in one place alone they have accumulated a quarter million dollars' worth of property, and do a million dollars' worth of business rearly. PAVITT AND EGAN. Michael Davitt has reached Chicago years. According to the ship's doctor's where he and Patrick Egan, the leader of the Lish sympathisers in this country and president of the National Land League: of America were enthusiastically received.

TO TALK FOR IRELAND. Sir Henry Grattan Esmond, or, as the afternoon papers will insist upon calling him, "Mr. Esmond," has turned up in New York with Mr. Arthur O'Connor. They are at the Hoffman House. They are both announced to plead for Ireland in Boston, Lowell, Jersey City, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis and San Francisco. but they don't intend to give the English Government a chance of catching them up in Canada.

(11) EXOUGH There is much talk at the New York Yacht Club over probable bringing over here by Mr. Sweet of a seventy foot water line cutter to win the America Cup, neat season. If this is done. a keel boat of the same size, will be built here by Burgess to beat her. The proposal of the Larchmont Yacht Club of New York to give a thousand dollar cup for the four big single thousand dollar cup for the four big single states in New York, died yesterday morning, at his home, No. 183 Madisonate. In his seventy-sixth year. He was of home has fallen through. The Thistle will not sail unless the Volunteer enters, which the Larchmont Club objects to, saving that it is "the same as presenting the Volunteer with a $1,000 cup, as the Volunteer evidently can't be beaten by the Thistle."

> NOTABLE VISITORS. Lord Herschell, with Lady Herschell. are in Philadelphia after a plessant overland trip from San Francisco. They are accompanied by Mr. Charles Buller and Victor R. Williamson of London. SWEEKEY IN NEW YORK.

Peter B. Sweeney is in New York today, and insists that he is here only on personal business, and though many knowing ones hint that his advice will be quietly sought by the democratic politicians in convection with the coming campaign, Sweency says he returns to Paris before the election.

THE MANITOBANS DOWNED.

Winnipeg's famous railmed to the United States boundary, according to sdispatch to the New York Times, hat fizzled out at last, and the Canadian Pacific Railway has scored a great triumph over the people of Manitoba. Owing to a lack of fands, the constructor has thrown up his contract and given asince to stop work. There is very latter feeling in Manitoba ov r the matter.

Ayoob is supposed to be preparing for a dash at Herat, where he would probably find a large manhous of pasting Tt is getter. large number of partisans. It is satisfactory, in view of such a possibility, to know that the Ameer is not displaying supineness. His impending visit to Candahar is evidently calculated to deal a crushing blow at the rebellious Chilzais, and at the same time to place him within striking distance of Herat, should Ayoob establish himself there. It is even rumored that the Ameer intends to make Candahar his capital, and no doubt this city is advantageously situated for keeping a tight hand upon that troublesome portion of his dominions, of which Herat is the centre. We may at any moment find ourselves committed to defend Afghanistan and India itself from Russian aggression, and every assistance from our Indian feudatories is of value, not only for the material help, but as ranging native sentiment upon our side. It is possible that the generosity of the Nizam may not find imitators among the less powerful native princes; but, unless his offer meets with an unfortunate reception at the hands of the Indian Government, the strong pro-bability is that his example will be fol-lowed by those chiefs whose good will it is our chief policy to culist in favor of

So far, there proceedings to precipitate. So far, therefore, the people of the district are to be congratulated on the comparatively orderly manner in which they have taken the first step in the vindication of a public right. They sang, we are told, "Rule Britannia" with exceeding ferror, and made the dales ring with the deciarations that they "never record would be tions that they "never, never would be slaves." The latter part of the programme might perhaps have been omitted. For though the object of the Society has at heart is in every way landable, it requires a good deal of local enthusiasm to imagine that there is any question of "slavery" involved in a friendly dispute as to the public access to a Cumberland hill. Now that the materials for a test case are provided, it is bound that once and are provided, it is hoped that, once and for all, the rights and the wrongs of the dispute will be settled before a tribunal more impartial than the public opinion more impartial than the public opinion of Keswick and its neighbourhood. The question is, indeed, one of long standing. The proprietor of the Great Bauk Estate, of which Latrigg, or "Skiddaw's Cub," forms a part, takes one view of the matter. The public at large hold another, and not long ago took means identical with those of Saturday to protest against his interpretation of ancient. test against his interpretation of ancient wont and usage. Barriers were reared, and quietly removed. But for some reason the proprietor does not seem to have considered the people who had constituted the selves defendants in this formal trespass sufficiently substantial to hear the larget of a law suit. Hence the repetition of the proceedings on Saturday. A few days earlier the same Society as that concerned in vindicating Society as that concerned in vindicating the right of way to the summit of Latrigg broke down the obstructions in the read leading from Nichol Ending in the direction of Silver Hill, which, it is contended, had been arbitrarily closed by the owner of the Fawe Park Estate. Sir Charles Gavan Dully's Constitutional Scheme Discussed with Its Author.

PARNELLITE ADHESIONS.

a Final Settlement of the Irish Question.

Sir Charles Gavan Duffy, the statemanauthor of "A History of Young Ireland," has just passed through Paris on his way to the Riviera. I took the opportunity of interviewing him with regard to his "Plan of a Fair Constitution for Ireland," which he explained in a remarkable article in the current number of the Contemporary Review.

The chief points in the plan it will be remembered were as follows:-An Irish Parliament consisting of a Senate and a Lower House, would sit in Dublin. The Lower House would consist of 105 members: the Senate of 54 members. The Senate would be partly elected, partly nominated by the Sovereign (under the advice of her responsible Irish Ministers). Minorities would be ensured a fair representation, proportionate to their numerical importance in the country. The Lord-Lieutenant would continue to act as the Queen of Ireland's delegate, with the right of Veto.

THE PLAN APPROVED.

The boldness of the scheme, which, as Sir Charles Gavan Duffy frankly stated, was intended not for the benefit of only Nationalists or Unionists, but for the contentment of all parties in Ireland, ensured it widespread attention. probably even its author himself hardly hoped it would have had a more than academic success. It would seem, however, that the plan has made a marked impression upon the minds of many prominent Irish and not a few English tical men; while certain well-known Irish-American Nationalists, if we may judge from the opinions they expressed at the time of Mr. Gladstone's Bill, would be prepared to accept it as a final settlement of the Irish question.

"How has your plan been received in Ireland and England, Sir Charles," said I. "In Ireland," said Sir Charles, "it has "In Ireland," said Sir Charles, "it has many received the assent of several of the men whom the people would most certainly follow. In England, some of the leading members of the late Gladstone Ministry have approved its main principles. I regret it is not possible to mention names Sixty or eighty important English papers have devoted articles to the plan. Many have disapproved it, but none have treated it disrespectfully. While the chief Irish Conservative organ has declared that though it does not want any Home Rule at all, yet if Home Rule must come, it would regard the guarantees for the pro-fection of the Protestant minority as satisfactory." WHAT THE PARKELLITER SAY. " Does the Parnellite party approve it? Yes, certainly. Leading men of the Parnellite party are prepared to accept my proposals; and none have expressed any absolute dissent from it. The proposal to have two Houses instead of a single have two mouses instead of a single Legislative Council has been especially and cordially approved; and though my plan for the nomination of the Irish Senators is not universally accepted, the majority of those to whom it has been referred are favourable."

"Do you really think, Sir Charles, that the plan—in its broad lines—would be accepted as a final settlement, or only with an ceriers penete, as a stop towards complete independence?"

It is impossible to give a satisfactory reply to that question. But my firm conviction is that such a settlement would be final. Nobody, I repeat, has raised any serious oligections to it, except a few English Radicals who dislike the idea of having two Chambers."
"What does Mr. Davitt say to the scheme ? neme: "He has made no utterance on the subject: but my impression is that he disapproves of having two Irish Chambers.

This would probably be his chief objection." "How is it that, putting the press out of the question, there has been no public pronouncement on the plan in Ireland?"

"The Coercion Bill was just coming into operation when the plan was published, and Irishmen had more pressing matters to think of. I have kernt, however, in conversation and by letter, that the scheme has been widely and favourably considered."

Even in Distants Partiament there was only a handful of minority representatives, whereas by my plan the minority would return one-third of the whole Irish Parliament. But, Sir Charles, if this plan of yours. "But, Sir Charles, if this plan of yours; were accepted in Ireland and England, would it satisfy Irish-Americans?"

"My dear Sir, I can't answer for Irish-Americans. I have only known my countrymen in the colonies and in Ireland; but I have observed that the Irish-Americans have agreed to other matters which, the Irish had approved—the Land League was one of them—and I see no reason; to doubt they would accept this plan."

WHAT PARIS SAYS.

Ra'y e que Ports. The excitment caused by the news of Signor Crispi's journey to Friedrichrani, would lead one to suppose all is not quite so pleasant as it might ! he in the relations of France and her, Transalpine neighbor. The minuteness with which General Ferron and his staff, have been inspecting the outposts on the Italian frontier is suggestive. Nice may he a burning question again before the world is much older.

Since it became known that he was to meet Prince Bismarck, Signor Crispi has been freely denounced as a Gallophobist. Only a month ago Paris had persuaded herself that the Italian Premier was rather friendly than hostile to France. As a matter of fact, he is neither one nor the other. He is purely Italian. I had a long chat with him lately in his I had a long chat with him lately in hispleasant rooms on the Pincio, a few impression that he was above all a patriot.

His motto is "Before all clae, Italy."

frontier outrage reached us? Counting time by days, hardly a week. But, judg-ing from the slender interest the Boulevard seems to take in the event now, it might be years. Judic, Crispi, Planquette's newest operetta, the Marsoulay scandal, and a dozen other matters have driven poor Brignon's death out of people's:

Madrid prima donna, will sing Desdemona and the chances are that Signor Muzio will be the conductor.

Much has been said and written about the "nearness" (to put it mildly), of the present directors of the Paris Opera, House. Signors Tetrazzini could say something on the subject if she chose. A short time ago M. Ritt gave her a trial bearing at the Opera, and, finding she: hearing at the Opera, and, finding she: had an admirable voice, offered her an engagement at the magnificent rate of four hundred france a month. Talking of music, I heard a rumour last night that Gounod had been asked to compose some music for the Pope's Sacerdotal Juhike. There is a grain of truth in the report, but the facts have been exaggerated. Gounod lately composed a page of music (16 or 18 bars in all) in the Pope's honour. It is a kind of Victa if Papa! and the original MS, will figure in a glass case at the coming Vations Facilities. Vicat il Papa! and the original MS-will figure in a glass case at the coming Vatican Exhibition. Hearing of this, the great Milan editor Ricordi wrote to Gounod to know whether he would sell him his author's rights to the composition. Gounod replied that he intended to present his Vica to the Pope, and offered to write something also for liticordi, apropos of the Jubilee. The result was a commission to compose a short cantata, or symphome ode, the exact title of which has yet to be chosen.

"Granting this, Sir Charles, would the House of Commons consent to the substitution of a Federal assembly for itself?"

"The only reply I can give you is that the House of Commons like every organized body, objects to relinquishing any of its powers. The lamentable story of Leonard Paillier, the bank messenger, who has just been sentenced to four years' imprisonment for stealing 100,000 france from the Societé Générale, would shake the optimism of a Candide. From the moment he made that little mistake about messa and tunn in Paris, to the hour of his arrest in Darcelona, the luckless Leonard was a victim of his trust in human nature. His lady friends squandered his money. Their husbands borrowed it. His servant endeavoured to betray him to M. Taylor. Finally, in Barcelona, where he had taken refuge, his last 10,000 francis, which he had buried in the floor of his room, mysteriously disappeared. All this room, mysteriously disappeared. All this, doubtless, had its weight with the Court which sentenced him, or he would hardly as have got off with less than the maximum.

Lufthansa Split on Buying Airbus Jet

By Warren Getler tional Heroid Tribuni

LONDON - Lufthansa AG's board will discuss the possible purchase of Airbus A-340 jumbo jets at a meeting Monday, but board members are divided on whether that plane is the right choice, a Lufthansa source said Friday.

Lufthansa, West Germany's na-tional airline, is one of several European carriers that have pushed Airbus Industrie to develop propossis for a long-range, narrow-body jet. Airbus Industrie, a con-sortium, has French, British, West German and Spanish participation. Airbus is banking heavily on a sion by Lufthansa to choose Mession by Lufthansa to choose the A-340 over an alternative being offered by McDonnell Douglas Co., the MD-11.

A decision by Lufthansa to reject the A-340 for the MD-11 could all but end Airbus's aspirations in the jumbo-jet category and could perharts endanger the consortium. Airbus was disappointed when Swissair, one of several airlines that

A derivative of the DC-10, the MID-11 has won 52 firm orders and 40 options to buy from 12 airlines and is expected to begin service in 1990. The A-340, if it is launched, is cheduled to begin in mid-1992.

Lufthansa uses both the DC-10 and earlier Airbus models, the A-300, A-310 and A-320, in its fleet.

The Lufthansa source, asking that his name not be used, said that the latest Airbus proposal on the A-340 appeared to meet Lufthansa requirements - after several failures to do so.

But, he continued, board members were concerned that the development and production of the plane might run into major delays or, in the event of funding squab-bles among supporting govern-

COLUMBUS, Ohio -Honda Motor Co. is to invest $450 million to expand its U.S. operations, bringing its total U.S. investment to $1.2 billion.

Honda, Japan's third-biggest car company and the fourth-biggest on U.S. soil behind General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp., said Thursday that it would expand its engine plant in Anna, Ohio, and build a new ironcasting plant.

It said the local content of its U.S.-made cars would rise to two-thirds by the end of the decade from 50 percent now.

"In our view it will be treacherous," Mr.

Wormley said. "We are going to be cautious." Mr. Testa said that he expected Morgan Stanley's international index to rise 10 to 20 percent in 1987, with overseas markets again outpacing U.S. markets. U.S. stocks posted their fifth consecutive annual gain in 1986. The Dow Jones industrial average of 30 blue-chip shares surpassed other indicators by rising 22.6 percent. The investment environment was aided by declines in interest rates and oil prices, but analysts could gite no single overwhelming factor for the market's performance. "One of the most intriguing aspects of the market's rise is the lack of anything to point to to explain it," said Laszlo Birmyi, an analyst at Salomon Brothers Inc.

The leading sectors were tobacco companies, pollution-control equipment companies and metal- and glass-container manufacturers, all up 50 percent or more. On the downside, offshore drillers fell more than 50 percent, while steel companies were off 20 percent and hospital management concerns fell more than 15 percent

In London, 1986 was the year of "Big Bang," of Wall Street-sized corporate takeovers and of the $8 billion sale of British Gas shares to the public, part of the Thatcher government's prisvirion drive.

The stock market rose 21 percent on the year, as measured by the Financial Times 500-stock

In early 1986, the market surged, amid several big takeover bids and hopes that the drop in oil prices would fuel worldwide economic improved confidence in the trade growth. But after peaking in early April, share prices moved indecisively.

Smaller-company shares had a robust climb. Shares of Britain's 100 largest companies advanced 18 percent, but the prices of the 632 other companies in the "all shares" index rose

Frankfurt

Last year was a topsy-turvy one for the Frankfurt stock exchange, as the powerful West German economy shifted gears. Previously driven by exports, the economy came to rely much more on domestic consumption.

Over all, the Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung index rose just 4.2 percent in 1986. However, in dollar terms, the market rose 33 percent because of the Deutsche mark's gains against the

The shift to domestic consumption caused some industries, such as steel, to suffer. But it aided auto makers and their suppliers. As for 1987, "It's going to be the year of the flexible investor," said Peter Pietsch, an analyst at Commerchank, in Frankfurt.

The bounding gains of stock prices in Tokyo last year took many analysts by surprise since most expected the market's sizzling pace of 1985 to cool down. But the buying con sending the Nikkei-Dow Jones average up 43 percent, to 18,701.3, by year-end.

"Stock prices are expected to be bearish in the first half of 1987, but with the business pickup in the United States in the latter half of the year, stock prices will surge," said Gentaro Kawase, president of Nihon Life Insurance Co.

The Canadian market struggled in 1986. The Toronto Stock Exchange's composite index rose just 6.4 percent and the prospects for 1987 are not much better.

"It's been a tough market for six months, and I think it will continue to be reasonably rigorous," said Robert Farquharson, executive vice president of AGF Management Ltd., a leading seller of munual funds.

nomic growth approaching 3 percent and a 15 index peaked on April 18 at 3,129, and drifted for the remainder of the year. The index would have finished the year even lower had it not been for the generally strong performance of Canadian natural-resource companies.

The Bourse leapt to life last year, but most of its gains were made in the first few months of 1986 in anticipation of the elections for the National Assembly, which were won by the pro-business right.

The Paris market's CAC index rose 48.5 percent in 1986, but far more substantial inreases were recorded in individual sectors. Retailing shares jumped 77 percent; construction stocks, 74 percent; financial holding companies, 67 percent, and insurance companies,

Hong Kong

The stock market continued to amaze some people in 1986, as it went from strength to strength in spite of the questions that hang over Hong Kong's future.

China is to regain sovereignty over the capi-talist enclave in 1997, but in 1986 the Hong Kong market recorded one of the steadiest performances of any major market, rising a solid 45 percent. The Hang Seng index finished the year at 2,568.3, up almost 1,000 points from Johannesburg's stock exchange enjoyed strong gains in 1986 that were partly the result of South Africa's severe problems.

The country's racial and international problems helped stimulate a worldwide rise in the price of gold, and gold producers are a major sector on the Johannesburg exchange. Its gold stock index rose 79 percent.

Linot long ago, we received a latter containing the above sentence. The writer, a lady, laid been troubled for about eight years with certifale heatschas, burning to the cars, failure of memory, loss of appoints, and great nervous debility and prostration. She would go for days, esting scincely maything, and could not even drink milk. She had a sense of fulloses or weight in the stomach after my attempt to sat, and was often girldy, with the face Sushed at times, as though she had a fever.

with the face Hushou at many, so among now man a fever.

Her spirits were depressed, and she would go astly shout the bouns at one does under some great to herewere. She tried physicians and she tried a change of air and some, but nothing accused to life the heavy lood. Early in the pensent year ahe began using Kaskine, called the new quintne. The result surprised her, for she had no more faith in it than in other things that prived good for nothing. In a few weeks pie was hetter, Her appetite impurved, her spirits were as light as when she was a girl, and she went to bed and about soundly and sweetly as a tired child. Ehe compared her recovery to the strady west wind blowing the storm clouds off the free of the blow sky. While taking Kaskine she need no other medicine.

dollar to 158.20 yen at midday in Tokyo, up from 157.55 in New York at Thursday's close. But it closed at 157.60, down from 158.20 at Thursday's close in Tokyo.

One dealer said the central bank cemed to be the only dollar buyer in the market. Some dealers sold dollars as the central bank bought, taking profits while the dollar was stronger. The interest in selling the dollar was reinforced by remarks Thursday in Washington by the U.S. Treasury secretary, James A. Baker 3d, who said that the dollar's decline had been reasonable and orderly and that he did not foresee deals said, "It's been very busy toany risk of a resurgence in inflation day, but strangely the market seems to have settled down a little."

The market interpreted the comments to mean that the U.S. Federal Reserve would not intervene in conjunction with the Bank of Japan looking for a weaker dollar.

CANBERRA — The Australian government, condemning Washington's decision to subsidize further barley exports to Sandi Arabia, said Friday that the move would drive down the price of Australian barley.

John Dawkins, the trade minister, and John Kerin, the primary industries minister, said in a statement that the move was contrary to Australia's understanding that no further initiatives would be announced during the present United States marketing year, which ends in April.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has decided to subsidize 1.25 million tons of barley exports to Sandi Arabia, in addition to the 1.25 million tons it had already undertaken to subsidize for 1986-87.

24 Years After That 'Coldest Day' Loss, Giants Aim to Sneak Up on Title

By Dave Anderson

New York Times Service NEW YORK - It's as if that icy wind in 1962 blew the New York Giants' season-ticket foscribers away from a championship game for a quarter of a century. Now, finally, they will be able to attend another championship are - against the Washington Redskins on Sunday at Giants Stadium for the National Conference title. But most of those 64,892 shivering speciators at Yankee Stadium on Dec. 30, 1962, still remembered it as the coldest day of

At the kickoff, the wind blew the ball off the three times before it was held. The temperahe at the kickoff was announced as 18 degrees minus 7.7 centigrade), but it had dropped oclow 10 by the time Jerry Kramer's third field goal clinched the National Football League mpionship for the Green Bay Packers, 16-7. As Bart Starr approached coach Vince Louibardi after having been the ball-holder, the Packers' quarterback was too cold to celebrate.

"I think my ears are frozen." Starr said. That wind from left field had gusted up to 50 miles per hour (80 kilometers per hour).

"The ball was like a diving duck," said Y.A. Tittle, the Giants' quarterback. "I threw one pass and it almost came back to me. The short ones worked, but the long ball broke up. We needed the long one."

Tittle had thrown 33 touchdown passes that season. And with a 12-2 record under coach Allie Sherman, the Giants were primed to atone for a 37-0 loss in Green Bay in the 1961 title

But in the gusts of the title game, the Giants' bald 36-year-old quarterback completed only 18 of 41 passes for 197 yards. One of those fluttering passes was deflected by the Packers' Ray Nitschke to another linebacker, Dan Currie, who intercepted. Nitschke also recovered

The Giants got their only touchdown when Erich Barnes, their left cornerback, blocked a punt and Jim Collier recovered the ball in the end zone. In cold weather then, quarterbacks didn't wear gloves. Neither did any of the other players. But they wore ripple-soled football shoes instead of cleats.

"The cold itself wasn't that bad," Starr said. "We've practiced in 15-below-zero weather in Green Bay and it didn't seem this cold. But the have had a brutal 3-11 record in championship nes - 3-4 at Yankee Stadium and earlier at the Polo Grounds, 0-7 on the road. Four years before that 1962 arctic afternoon, the Giants lost to the Baltimore Colts in overtime, 23-17. But those Giants still think they should have won in regulation.

With a 17-14 lead and slightly more than 2 minutes remaining the Giants had a third-and-four at their 39-yard line. Halfback Frank Gifford ran a sweep to the right. But in the pileup, Gino Marchetti, the Colts' all-pro defensive end, had an ankle broken.

"I had that first down," Gifford said, "If the referee hadn't been so concerned about helping Marchetti and had marked the ball first, we'd have had the first down and the championship. But he took so much time getting Marchetti out of the pileup, when he put the ball down we were still a few inches short."

Jim Lee Howell, the Giants' coach, ignored

completed four passes, three to Raymond Berry, to position Steve Myhra for a 20-yard field goal with seven seconds remaining. After 8 minutes 15 seconds of overtime, Alan Ameche smathed in from the one-yard line.

In 1956 the Giants won their last championship with a 47-7 rout of the Chicago Bears in their first season at Yankee Stadium, where the "DEE-fense, DEE-fense" chant began. That day the Giants wore white sneakers supplied by Andy Robustelli, their Hall of Fame defensive end who owned a sporting-goods store.

At the Polo Grounds, the Giants won two NFL titles. In 1938 they stopped the Packers, 23-17, when their Hall of Fame center and backer, Mel Hein, returned in the closing minutes after having suffered a concussion in the first half. And in 1934 the Giants stunned the Bears, 30-13, in the first "sneakers" game.

2 Championship Seasons Are Down to 4 Quarters

By Barry Wilner

CLEVELAND - The Cleveland owns played like champions during the last six weeks of the National Football League season. The Den-Broncos played like champions ing the first six weeks.

Sunday, at 12:30 P.M. here, they neet for the American Football Conference championship and, said the Browns' tight end, Ozzie Newsome, "It's down to four quarters now. This is as close as we've been and we won't be backing off

En route to this game that will decide who goes to the Super Bowl in Pasadena, California, the Browns won their last five games of the regular season, going 12-4 to post the best record in the conference. Harrah's Race and Sports Book in Reno, Nevada, has installed them as three-point favorites to win Sunday. The Broncos were 6-0 before losing a Monday night game to the New York Jets, then finished at 11-5 after splitting their last 10 games.

"That has no bearing on this me," said the Broncos' coach. an Reeves. "I think we are ready or the Browns and, if we play as we an, we'll be fine."

The Broncos and Browns have noi met since 1984, when Sam Rutigliano was coaching Cleveland and heading for a 1-7 start, which got him fired and Marty Schottenneimer hired. Denver won, 24-14. Last Saturday, the Browns rallied with 10 points in the final two minutes of regulation time, then beat the Jets, 23-20, in double over-

As for Cleveland's defensive backs, led by All-Pro corner Hanford Dixon, Reeves said, "Their cornerbacks are very comparable to the [Los Angeles] Raiders' and the Kansas City [Chiefs'] corners, and we think they are the best in the league."

The rally against the Jets reinforced the Browns' belief that they are the best in the league and heading for their first Super Bowl.

AFC PREVIEW

Yet Elway's ability to run with the ball presents the Cleveland defense with a problem the Denver defense can ignore. Elway scrambled for 257 yards this season; Kosar, who prefers the pocket, gained 19 yards on 24 runs. "Elway has the ability to make a good play out of a potentially bad play," said Schottenheimer, calling attention to Elway's 22-yard touchdown scramble against England. Schottenheimer expected Elway to have full mobility Sunday.

10 Players Test Baseball Free-Agency

NEW YORK -- Two power-hit-Award winner and a batting champion Thursday night rejected lastminute offers to return to their former clubs and will make an imprecedented test of major league baseball's free agent process.

Catchers Lance Parrish of the Detroit Tigers and Rich Gedman of the Boston Red Sox, left-handed pitcher Ron Guidry of the New York Yankees and outfielder Tim Raines of the Montreal Expos headed a group of free agents with more credentials than prospects. The others were first baseman Bob Horner of the Atlanta Braves, outfielder Andre Dawson of the Expos, infielders Doyle Alexander of the Braves, Toby Harrah of the Texas Rangers and Gary Roenicke of the Yankees and catcher Bob Boone of the California Angels.

The Players Association confirmed that five players — Ernie Whitt of the Toronto Blue Jays, Tommy John and Willie Randolph of the Yankees and Brian Downing and Dong DeCinces of the Angels - had re-signed with their clubs.

John signed a one-year guaranteed contract and Randolph agreed to a two-year deal. The Angels and Blue Jays did not release details of

won the 1984 World Series. Now he has back problems, which made the Tigers reluctant to agree to his requests. He rejected a two-year $2.4 million offer Thursday night. Gedman hit .258 with 16 homers and 65 RBI last season, helping the Red Sox win the American League pennant. He approached the Yan-kees this week, hoping to make a deal, but they declined to negotiate. Guidry, who won the 1978 Cy Young Award, has twice reached the 20-victory plateau, but his effectiveness has waned and his age, 36, probably concerned the Yankees.

Raines led the National League in batting with a 334 average, scoring 91 runs and stealing 70 bases although the Montreal Expos finished 29% games out of first place in the NL East last season. The Expos would appear to have little prospect of improvement without signing either Raines or Dawson.

Of Costs to Rescue or Close Banks in 1987 WASHINGTON -- Government budget analysts have predicted that federal banking regu-lators will spend billions of dollars more on bank closings and bailouts this year than had been estimated. The White House Office of Management and Budget now predicts that the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. will pay out $4.05 billion more to close or bail out ailing, federally insured banks than it will collect in premiums this fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30, a budget office spokesman said Thursday.

Last August, the office estimated that the FDIC's collections from premiums would expend its remaining to be a second of the second of ceed its spending on bank rescues and closures by $1.9 billion.

Coffee Organization To Discuss New Quotas

LONDON - Coffee producers, disturbed by a sharp fall in its price, will discuss reintroduc ing export quotas at a meeting that the Interna-tional Coffee Organization's executive board has called for Jan. 28, a spokesman said Friday. Coffee market prices soared early last year because of drought in Brazil, which is the world's biggest producer, but they have dropped to about 125 cents a pound from 180

Cents in September, the organization said.

Quotas have been suspended since February 1986. A reintroduction would have to be negotiated with the organization's consumers at a full council session. The organization's 50 producers represent 99 percent of coffee exporters.

One dealer said the central bank seemed to be the only dollar buyer in the market. Some dealers sold dollars as the central bank bought, taking profits while the dollar was stronger. The interest in selling the dollar was reinforced by remarks Thursday in Washington by the U.S. Treasury secretary, James A. Baker 3d, who said that the dollar's decline had been reasonable and orderly and that he did not foresee any risk of a resurgence in inflation because of its decline.

The market interpreted the comments to mean that the U.S. Federal Reserve would not intervene in looking for a weaker dollar.

TN November 1785, when "The English Experiment" opens, James Boswell was 45 years old. Samuel Johnson had died the previous December, and Boswell, who had just published his account of the tour that he and Johnson had made to the Hebrides, was getting ready to start work on a fullscale biography. Over the next three years or so he completed a first draft, and at the same time continued keeping the journal that was eventually to give him a secondary but substantial claim to lasting

"The English Experiment" is the 12th and penultimate volume in the edition of the journal that has been appearing since 1950. In general, it offers the same pleasures as its predecessors — verve and spontaneity; shrewdness mixed with folly; a lively picture of the times; a genius for self-revelation that propre positively engaging.

But the latest volume is also the most painful in the series, and there can be no mistaking the dark and discontented mood that runs through many of its pages. "Rose sadly irresolute" is a typical entry, "there was an insipid dreariness about me" is anoth-

Much of the gloom sprang from anxiety about his professional prospects. The "English experiment" was his decision, after his political aspirations in Scotland had come to nothing, to try his luck as a lawyer in England. He had already practiced law for nearly 20 years in Edinburgh; now, in February 1786, he was called to the bar at one of the Inns of Court in London, the Inner Temple.

But Scottish law is very different from English law, and 45 was late in the day to start experimenting with a new career. Moreover, moving to London meant neglecting his family, who remained in Scot-land, at a time when his wife had already been suffering for years from the consumption that was to kill her.

Solution to Last Week's Puzzle

In the event the experiment proved a miserable failure. But later in 1786 fresh opportunities for advancement seemed to beckon when he was ap-proached by the Earl of Lonsdale, a ruthless political boss who dominated large areas of the northwest of England (he had nine members of Parliament in his pocket). At first Boswell was cautious, but with an attractive prize being dangled in front of him— the post of recorder or chief legal officer of the city of Carlisle—he slowly succumbed, and for the next three years, as far as politics went, he was to be Lonsdale's creature.

It was a punishing experience. As he found himself drawn into the web, Boswell fancied that he saw in Lonsdale "an example of an aggregate of greatness: ancient family, immense estates, a created peerage, force of intellect, fierceness, Parliamentary interest." But the earl also turned out to be a capricious and tightlisted tyrant, who enjoyed ex-acting total submission from his dependents.

By the time Lonsdale was ready to make good his promise of the Carlisle appointment, Boswell was asking himself "what I had to do with such a man."

asking himself "what I had to do with such a man."

("I thought I heard my worthy father say, 'James, I left you independent.") He tried to pull out, but Lonsdale's will prevailed, and it was not until the summer of 1790—a year after "The English Experiment" ends—that he finally broke free.

The year after that, in May 1791, he published the "Life of Johnson." It can be something of a shock, reading about his oppressed state of mind while he enjoyed (or endured) Lonsdale's patronage, to recollect that he was simultaneously writing the greatest biography in the language.

Already shot through with frustration and unease, "The English Experiment" closes on a note of deep remonse after his wife's death. Yet it is far from being the depressing work that this may make it deep remotes after me wire's death. Yet it is far from being the depressing work that this may make it sound. Boswell remains Boswell, even in the midst of his troubles: eager, convivial, alert to his own inconsistencies, drinking too much and getting into scrapes. "How material is man!" he reflects after constrming a hearty dinner. "I myself am certainly much so." But he is affectionate, too, and touching and funny and he continues to command sympathy. and funny, and he continues to command sympathy through all his vicissitudes.

24 Years After That 'Coldest Day' Loss, Giants Aim to Sneak Up on Title

The temperathe lickoff was announced as 18 degrees finns 7.7 centigrade), but it had dropped by 10 by the time Jerry Kramer's third field chirched the National Football League approach for the Green Bay Packers, 16-7. Bart Starr approached coach Vince Lomis filer having been the ball-holder, the

"I think my ears are frozen," Starr said. That wind from left field had gusted up to 50

But in the gusts of the title game, the Giants' bald 36-year-old quarterback completed only 18 of 41 passes for 197 yards. One of those fluttering passes was deflected by the Packers' Ray Nitschke to another linebacker, Dan Currie, who intercepted. Nitschke also recovered and the Packers' only touchdown.

"I don't ever remember being hit so hard," Taylor said. "I bled the whole game. My arms bled from hitting that frozen dirt. And my tongue bled after l bit it in the first half." Taylor accused the Giants, notably Sam

"Taylor likes to crawl," Huff snapped. "The only way to stop Taylor is to make sure that he's

The Giants got their only touchdown when Erich Barnes, their left cornerback, blocked a punt and Jim Collier recovered the ball in the end zone. In cold weather then, quarterbacks didn't wear gloves. Neither did any of the other players. But they wore ripple-soled football shoes instead of cleats.

"The cold itself wasn't that bad," Starr said. "We've practiced in 15-below-zero weather in Green Bay and it didn't seem this cold. But the wind was brutal."

have had a brutal 3-11 record in championship games - 3-4 at Yankee Stadium and earlier at the Polo Grounds, 0-7 on the road. Four years before that 1962 arctic afternoon, the Giants lost to the Baltimore Colts in overtime, 23-17. But those Giants still think they should have won in regulation.

With a 17-14 lead and slightly more than 2 minutes remaining, the Giants had a third-and-four at their 39-yard line. Halfback Frank Gifford ran a sweep to the right. But in the pileup, Gino Marchetti, the Colts' all-pro defensive end, had an ankle broken.

"I had that first down," Gifford said. "If the referee hadn't been so concerned about helping Marchetti and had marked the ball first, we'd have had the first down and the championship. But he took so much time getting Marchetti out of the pileup, when he put the ball down we were still a few inches short."

completed four passes, three to Raymond Berry, to position Steve Myhra for a 20-yard field goal with seven seconds remaining. After 8 minutes 15 seconds of overtime, Alan Ameche smashed in from the one-vard line.

In 1956 the Giants won their last championship with a 47-7 rout of the Chicago Bears in their first season at Yankee Stadium, where the "DEE-fense, DEE-fense" chant began. That day the Giants wore white sneakers supplied by Andy Robustelli, their Hall of Fame defensive end who owned a sporting-goods store.

At the Polo Grounds, the Giants won two NFL titles. In 1938 they stopped the Packers, 23-17, when their Hall of Fame center and linebacker, Mel Hein, returned in the closing minutes after having suffered a concussion in the first half. And in 1934 the Giants stunned the Bears, 30-13, in the first "sneakers" game. In zero-degree weather that morning, Ray

Jordan Shuns 'Machine' Tag But Continues His Scoring

CHICAGO — "At long last I've lost the tag of being known as the Bulls' one-man scoring machine," Michael Jordan said Thursday night after the Chicago Bulls beat the Portland Trail Blazers, 121-117, in the National Basketball Association. "I believe that I am taking advantage of passing off to the open man when I'm being double-

"I may have been a one-man team earlier in the season, but now we've gotten to our act together, and when you look at [Charles] Oakley's 16 points and 16 rebounds and [Brad] Sellers' 15 points and 10 rebounds, nobody can accuse me of being a one-man show," Jordan said.

He made 20 of 34 field goal atfree throw line.

Jordan's previous regular-season high was 50 points on Nov. 1 against the New York Knicks. Last April, he scored 63 in a playoff game against the Boston Celtics.

Said Portland's coach, Mike Schuler: "Michael gives you problems all over the court. The whole league has been trying to devise ways to stop him. The best way to What he forgot to mention was stop him is when Doug Collins [the that he had scored 53 points, and Bulls' coach] takes him out."

10 Players Test Baseball Free-Agency

NEW YORK - Two power-hitting catchers, a former Cy Young Award winner and a batting champion Thursday night rejected lastminute offers to return to their former clubs and will make an unprecedented test of major league baseball's free-agent process. Catchers Lance Parrish of the Detroit Tigers and Rich Gedman of the Boston Red Sox, left-handed pitcher Ron Guidry of the New York Yankees and outfielder Tim Raines of the Montreal Expos headed a group of free agents with more credentials than prospects. The others were first baseman Bob Horner of the Atlanta Braves, outfielder Andre Dawson of the Expos, infielders Doyle Alexander of the Braves, Toby Harrah of the Texas Rangers and Gary Roenicke of the Yankees and catcher Bob Boone of the California Angels.

The Players Association confirmed that five players - Emie White of the Toronto Blue Jays, Tommy John and Willie Randolph of the Yankees and Brian Downin and Doug DeCinces of the Angels - had re-signed with their clubs.

John signed a one-year guaran-teed contract and Randolph agreed to a two-year deal. The Angels and Blue Jays did not release details of the contracts. Any player not signed by the midnight EST deadline became ineligible to join his former club until May 1. The unsigned players-face an uncertain future amid charges that owners are in collusion not to sign to free agents. Last year, not one prominent free agent decided to test the market.

The Players' Association contempts and was 13 of 16 from the tends that owners — in violation of free throw line. are colloding to force players into re-signing with their former clubs. Union chief Don Fehr has said that if no major free agents move this year it will support his claim that owners are colluding to restrain the marketplace. After the deadline the Players' Association declined to comment on this year's negotiations.

Of all available players, none offered the potential for affecting pennant races as strongly as Whitt, Parrish and Gedman, who came from the three most recent winners in the AL East.

Parrish formed part of the Tigers' strength up the middle when they won the 1984 World Series. Now he has back problems, which made the Tigers reluctant to agree to his requests. He rejected a two-year $2.4 illion offer Thursday night. Gedman hit .258 with 16 homers and 65 RBI last season, helping the Red Sox win the American League permant. He approached the Yan-kees this week, hoping to make a deal, but they declined to negotiate.

Guidry, who won the 1978 Cy Young Award, has twice reached the 20-victory plateau, but his effectiveness has waned and his age, 36, probably concerned the Yankees.

Raines led the National League in batting with a 334 average, scoring 91 runs and stealing 70 bases although the Montreal Expos finished 29½ games out of first place in the NL East last season. The Expos would appear to have little prospect of improvement without signing either Raines or Dawson.

U.K. Horse Disqualified — For Eating Candy Bar

By Andrew Warshaw

LONDON - A sweet-toothed 30-cent chocolate bar the day before winning a big race has been disqualified, losing $15,000 in prize money and saddling his trainer with a fine.

The Jockey Club, the governing body of British horseracing, ruled Thesday that a Mars bar given to De Rigeur, a 4-year-old gelding, contained a stimulant called theobromine that is prohibited under the sport's antidoping laws.

De Rigeur, a 20-to-1 long shot ridden by British champion jockey Pat Eddery, won the Balmoral Handicap at Ascot last September, but a routine urine test after the race turned up traces of theobromine. The substance was traced to

"All chocolate contains theobromine, it's naturally present in the cocoa bean at very low levels," said Alison Hill, health affairs manager for Mars Ltd., the British subsidiary of the U.S. company Mars Inc.

"A human being, to get any significant stimulant effect from theobromine, would have to eat something like 120 100-gram bars of milk chocolate. A horse would have to eat considerably more."

Saily Downes, a spokeswoman for the Jockey Club, said that theobromine could theoretically affect a horse's performance. "It's a metabolite of caffeine and AIPUR, India - The women got their emeralds out of the vault. The men wrapped their heads in scarlet turbans, then preened with their swords in front of the mirror. The queen mother, who counts Jacqueline Onassis and Queen Elizabeth II among her friends, arrived in her chanffeured white Mercedes. India has changed from the days when maharajas controlled one-third of the country, but the House of Jaipur, the nation's most glamorous clan of onetime royals, did not let that spoil its family reunion.

It was a gathering to mark the recent marriage of a son in an important branch of the Jainur family. The groom arrived at the wedding by elephant. But the nearly weeklong get-together in this city of palaces was also a chance to celebrate the old traditions in a country that no longer recognizes them. The Jaipurs were among the richest of the country's 600 princely families, and even more than the others, they lived in the India of glitter and excess: tiger shoots, polo matches, party weekends at hunting lodges sur-rounded by the golden desert in what is now the modern Indian state of Rajasthan. The queen mother's grandfather kept trained parrots that rode little silver bicycles. Her mother had a gold tongue scraper and also a live turtle encrusted with diamonds and rubies that she used as a goodbuck charm at the gambling tables of France. But things are not well with the Jaipurs these days. Among the topics at the wedding was a lawsuit over an estate estimated at $400 million that is splitting the family, pitting the widowed queen mother against her stepson, the current maharaja. At the heart of the quarrel is whether the estate belongs to the whole family or the maharaja alone.

"It's only he who is creating this problem," the queen mother says of the maharaja, Bhawani Singh "Bubbles" to friends. Bubbles calls the situation "sad" but adds that "it's not like I have everything and the rest of them are out on the street.

their kinedoms when the country became independent in 1947. Things became more unpleasant when Prime Minister Indira Gandhi abolished their titles and government stipends in 1971,

The star guest at the wedding was the queen mother, Gayatri Devi. When she arrived, people touched her feet. In Jaipur these days she holds court at Lilly Pool, a large sun-filled house on the grounds of her former home, the Rambagh Palace. Thirty years ago the family turned Rambagh into a luxury hotel to pay for the upkeep, and now tourists can stay in Gayatri Devi's old bedroom suite for $250 a night. "I was always a tomboy," she says in a throaty English accent that makes her sound like an Indian Tallulah Bankhead. "If I got up in the morning, it was 'rush, rush, rve got to go riding.' There was no time to look in the mirror and pluck an eyebrow."

These days she spends her summers in the United States and Europe and her winters in Jaipur. It with 400 servants. home with her," the queen mother says. Last year Mick Jagger dropped by her stepson's house. In India, she has projects: two schools, a dhurrie rug business, a stud farm, charity work. In New York a little more than a year ago, she went to the rounds of parties celebrating the "Costumes of Royal India" exhibit at the Metropolitan Museum; 40 percent of the show came from Jaipur and the family's private collection.

She grew up as the daughter of the Maharaja of Cooch Behar, in northeastern India, in a palace as a liberated princess who never ters. She shot her first panther when she was 12, went to finishing school in London and Switzerland, then fell in love with a dreamboat, the young Maharaja of Jaipur, "Jai" to his friends. He was one of the world's finest polo players and liked a good party. She became his third wife, then had to adjust to life in Jaipur with easier to get on with your hus-band's other wife, who has an official position, and a status, than his mistress, who's asurping you," she

Jai died in 1970 of a heart attack during a polo metch, leaving her, she once wrote, "to retreat into stricken seclusion, overpowered by grief." She has recounted her life in her book, "A Princess Remembers," written with Santha

In the lawsuit, she has aligned herself against Bubbles and with his three younger stepbrothers. They argue that when Bubbles took possession of the estate after Jai died, he did so on behalf of the family. But Bubbles says family custom dictates that he should be the sole inheritor.

Bubbles is the second child and only son of Jai and his first wife, who were married in 1923, when Jai was only 12. The wife was from the Jodhpur family, much older than Jai, and the wedding was merely an alliance. She was called First Her Highness" and lived in the women's quarters. Bubbles was born when Jai was 18, and so much champagne flowed in the ensuing celebrations that his English namy gave him his nick-name, which stuck.

In 1932, Jai married a second wife, or "Second Her Highness." This was also arranged by the family. She gave birth to two sons, Joey and Pat, and lived in the women's quarters. In 1940, Jai and the current queen mother married for love, At that time she was called "Third Her Highness" and gave birth to one son, Jagat.

The family insists that everyone got on well. "In those days, lots of people had two wives," says Joey, who manages some of the family investments. "We were all treated the same. We never felt 'this is my mother, and this is not my mother.' Our father got on well with all of them."

The wedding went off as planned, which was endlessly into the night. The bride looked lovely, if slightly stricken. The queen mother paid her respects, then waved goodbye to the crowd from the window of her white Mercedes. To avoid collecting and paying sales taxes, the store falsely claimed that delivery of high-priced merchandise was made out of state. Abraham Biderman, the city finance commissioner, said the city and state lose more than $400 million a year because stores and their customers avoid sales taxes.

A man dying of AIDS who wants to renew the civil-marriage vows he made to his wife three years ago has been denied a request to have it done in New York cathedral. Monsignor James F. Rigney, the rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral, reversed a priest's decision to allow David Hefner to partake in the ceremony, which had been scheduled for Feb. 14. Rigney said the church's policy was not related to the Catholic Church's stand against homosexuality. Hefner said he was a homosexual before his marriage.

The National Gallery of Art in Washington said Thursday it will acquire a modern art collection it called one of the most important of the last half century. The collection belongs to the Maryland real estate developer Robert E. Meyerhoff, said the gallery director, J. Carter Brown. Started in the 1950s, it consists of nearly 100 major American and European paintings and more than 100 drawings, prints and sculptures dating since World War II. The gallery said the collection includes a strong concentration of works by Jasper Johns, Ellsworth Kelly, Roy Lichtenstein, Robert Rauschenberg and Frank Stella. There also are paintings by such Grammy awards field with five nominations, the National Acade my of Recording Arts & Sciences announced Paul Simon and Peter Gabriel followed with four nomina-tions each. Winwood enjoyed the widto Move greatest success of his 20 year career in 1986 with this top two album "Back in the Highlife" and No. 1 single "Higher Love." The winners will be announced Feb. 24.

Unpublished abort stories by the mystery writer Dashiel Hammett have turned up among the posses-sions of Litter Helburn and will soon be published. A trustee for Heliman's estate, Peter Feibles said about a half-dozen stories b Hammett were found among Hell-man's belongings — in desk draw-ers and boxes — after she died in June 1984. Hellman was Hammett's lover and close friend for decades until he died 25 years ago. He left title to his literary property for more than £100,000 ($145,000) by organizers of the London concert he canceled last month in a cloud of controversy. The Krugg Organization, which promoted the concert at Wembley Stadium in London, amounced Thursday that it had begun legal proceedings against the Spanish-born tenor and his agents, Margherita Stafford and David Law. Domingo announced the day before the Dec. 17 concert that the £15.50-£50.50 ticket prices were "very, very high" and he would not perform.

Navier Cagat, who turned 87 on New Year's Day, said in Barcelona Friday he is coming out of retirement after 15 years and will return to the stage with a new band next Tuesday. Cugat said that the 25member group would play the same Latin American style which earned him the nickname "the Rhumba King" during his heyday in the 1930s. Born in Spain but raised in Cuba, Cugat spent nearly a mone in hospital last year with heart and
